THE WORLD'S MARKETS

Information of Great Interest to the American Farmer.

EUROPE'S DEMAND IS LIMITED

The United States Must Cultivate Her Home Market and Turn Her Attention to the Bread Fields of South America

WASHINGTON, May 20.—The May report of the statistician of the agricultural department contains the result of the investigations of the deficiency and surplus of each European nation, especially in connection with American agricultural products that seek foreign markets.

The question of a possible enlargement of exportation in quantity and variety is canvassed and opportunities for displacing of any importation by enlarged production are pointed out

The investigation was made pursuant to a resolution passed at a meeting of the national grange, held at Topeka, Kas, last fall. Some of the figures given in the statement prepared by Dodge are startling

As to wheat, it says that Europe is practically the only market America can have for this cereal, and she imports only 144,000,000 bushels a year, raising 1 200,000,000 bushels herself, more than half of the world's crop and twice that of all America. Of the European deficiency the United States supplies 95,000,000 bushels

In oats and barley there is a very small international trade Europe importing only 19,000,000 bushels of oats, and the United States exporting 4,500,000 bushels

Of barley this country exports 7 500,000 bushels. Rye is the great bread grain in Eastern and Central Europe and Russia alone produces more than does the United States Europe imports not less than 3 000,000 bushels

The receipts of the European countries requiring maize do not make a sum half as large as the products in Illinois, Iowa or Missouri Great Britain takes nearly three fourths of the total or 62 000 000 bushels and this country exports 66,000 000 bushels. The deficiency of France could be supplied by McLean county, Ills., and Germany requires still less Russia and Roumania have a surplus and Southern Europe grows enough for home consumption

Europe imports over 1,000,000,000 pounds of rice, but none of it comes from the United States.

Of potatoes Europe grows more than she needs The United States supplies a deficiency in Canada and Germany

Only Great Britain, Belgium and Portugal of all the European nations, do not produce enough butter and to spare To make up the deficiency of 25,000 000 pounds the United States exports 24 000,000

It requires 140,000,000 pounds of cheese to supply the European deficiency, of which 118,000 000 are furnished by the United States.

Of course, Europe has to import all of her cotton the annual average imports being 2,632 000,000 pounds. The United States sends 1,850,000,000 pounds.

Europe gets from South America Asia, Africa and Australia two or three times the wool she imports from the United States. The net deficiency of Europe is 780,000 000 pounds, slightly more than the amount produced there The United States produces four fifths of the wool manufactured here The aim of the wool growers of this country is to supply home manufacture, if possible never to export raw wool. If there ever shall be a surplus it will bring more money to wool growers, if sent abroad in a manufactured form The United States imports 89,000,000 pounds of wool net every year

Europe produces about as much tobacco as the United States, 500,000 000 pounds annually and could easily produce all she needs, but American tobacco is desired for two reasons, it is cheap, and very desirable for fortifying the European product. So the United States furnishes 242,000,000 pounds out of an annual deficiency of 345,000,000 pounds

In conclusion the statistician says "About one tenth of our agricultural products is exported No other nation exports so large a proportion Yet articles shipped abroad are few They are cotton tobacco meats, breadstuffs, butter and cheese All of the other articles together are about 3 per cent of the exports. The enlargement of the surplus must inevitably reduce prices both at home and abroad In response to the inquiry as to what agricultural products are now imported that our country and climate are capable of producing sugar is first suggested Flax and hemp should be more extensively grown, displacing foreign fibers costing millions of money, and furnishing material for the bagging of cotton, wool and hops. Other fibers of subtropical regions should be produced along the Gulf coast Imported fibers with their manufacture, a together amount to a value of more than two thirds as much as the magnificent and boasted cotton exportations of the United States. There is an importation of fruits of the value of $20,000 000 half of which at least, should be produced in this country"

THE TAKING OF OATHS.

A Supreme Court Decision That Is Said to Affect More Than 100,000 Cases

WASHINGTON May 20—The opinion of the United States supreme court in the case of the United States vs. John D Hall was to-day the subject of earnest discussion among the officials of the general land office

One of the points at issue was that Hal had made an oath before a notary public The supreme court decided that where an oath is required by the United States statute, the oath can be administered only by an officer of the United States, hence a notary public, being a state officer, cannot administer the oath to United States officials except the statutes specifically state that the oath may be made before such state officials

This opinion, it is believed seriously affects more than 100 000 cases in the mineral division alone of the general land office. The deputy mineral surveyors have for several years, it is said, sworn to the correctness of their statements before notaries public.

During the last four years a large number of cases under the general land laws have been received for patent at the general land office, where final proof was not made before the officer designated by law for the purpose. Where no other error was found they had been allowed to go to patent. This policy was first adopted by Secretary Vilas.

The opinion of the supreme court has created alarm, and a request for the interpretation of section 235 of the revised statutes has been sent to Assistant Attorney-General Shields, with particular reference to the supreme court decision and its effect upon the pending cases in the general land office

EAGER OFFICE SEEKERS.

Letters Received by Mrs. Harrison Urging the Use of Her Influence.

WASHINGTON, May 20—It seems that Mrs. Harrison as well as the president, is not free from the annoyance of office seekers. Her mail contains every day appeals from office seekers to use her influence with her husband in the writer's behalf

Some of the correspondents request Mrs. Harrison to remind the president that their applications remain unanswered. They have heard nothing about them and they fear that the president has inadvertently neglected to act upon them They beg Mrs. Harrison to look around the office for the letters and petitions, and put them where General Harrison will be sure to see them

Some of the letters are from women One of them in a recent epistle wrote that she was a widow with three girl children, and that her husband was killed in the war, fighting on the Southern side and there was an unconscious pathos in the details of a poor widow's struggles to maintain and bring up in the fear of the Lord those three girl children She wanted a postoffice paying only $250 a year, and yet it would be a God send to her

One man wrote recently eight letters to Mrs. Harrison, because he feared that three previous epistles of some length addressed to "your respected husband had failed to meet his eye" The letters breath the most devoted piety, truest republicanism and the most pronounced prohibition sentiments, and end up with the request for an office of some kind that would make life a little easier for a man with only one leg

A FIGHT WITH DESPERADOES.

A Party of Detectives Attacked at a Residence in Virginia.

PARKERSBURG Va May 20—The three detectives who went to Tyler county to arrest the persons implicated in the murder of Jacob Morgan were notified Saturday night while stopping at a residence, that they would be attacked before morning

About 3 o clock a number of men surrounded the house and demanded the surrender of the officers, who replied with a volley The battle continued for some time, when the assailants retired In the morning the officers found blood-marks in the woods which indicates that two or three of the attacking party were wounded and carried away

They have obtained reinforcements and are expecting another attack Tyler county is much excited over the affair

THE DEFENSES AT ESQUIMALT.

A Dispatch Stating That Work Will Soon Be Commenced.

OTTAWA May 20—The Canadian government has received a cablegram from the imperial authorities, stating that the work on the Pacific coast defenses will be begun this summer.

The home government has always been keenly alive to the importance of fortifications on the Pacific coast, especially at and about Esquimalt, the terminus of the Canadian Pacific railway, as well as the arsenal of the British navy on the Pacific coast.

Last year the British admiralty detailed an officer to make a careful examination of the coast of British Columbia between Vancouver and Esquimalt, with the object of deciding upon sites for the erection of batteries commanding the entrances to Puget Sound, and protecting Esquimalt. The recommendations were made but nothing has been done until lately when the British government, stirred up to activity by the renewal of negotiations by the government at Washington regarding the Behring sea question, decided that work on the coast defenses should be begun at once

Hon G E Foster, minister of finance, speaking to a reporter to-day regarding the statement published in a San Francisco paper, to the effect that the British government was contemplating a scheme for the transformation of the entrance to Puget Sound into a second Gibralter, said that the expression "second Gibralter was too strong, but that it was the intention of the Canadian and imperial authorities to make great improvements in the defense of the Pacific seaboard ports, especially at Esquimalt "If the Americans object," he said, "to our establishing batteries commanding the entrance to Puget sound, why let them build forts on the opposite side of the straits."

STRUCK BY A CYCLONE.

Terrible Devastation Caused in the Lackawanna Valley.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., May 20.—A terrific wind and rain storm which afterwards turned into a cyclone, swept through the Lackawanna valley this afternoon Many houses were wrecked, fences blown down barns demolished, and whole orchards ruined. The houses occupied by Charles Robinson and Charles White were swept from their foundations and all of their inmates injured.

AT MARE ISLAND

MARE ISLAND, May 20—The Australian Steam Navigation Company's steamer Rockton, Captain Armstrong twenty days from Apia, arrived here this afternoon The shipwrecked sailors were transferred to the receiving ship Independence. All the sick have recovered, except three, who were sent to the hospital The men will be transferred to other ships, except a few whose terms of service are about to expire. The steamer Rockton will go to San Francisco to-morrow, where she will load barley for Sydney

THE STORM ELSEWHERE.

SCRANTON, Pa. May 20—A severe storm passed over this city this afternoon

At Clark's Green, a small village eight miles north, the wind came on with frightful velocity, blowing down trees, wrecking small outbuildings, and completely leveling to the ground a dwelling in course of erection. Two large frame barns were lifted from their foundations and shattered to pieces, orchards were laid waste and fences torn down. No such cyclone has been experienced in this region in years. No loss of life is reported

MARRIAGE OF MRS. FOLSOM.

A Michigan Man Aged Sixty Years Leads Her to the Altar.

JACKSON, Mich, May 20—Great interest was aroused in society circles yesterday when the rumor became current that Mrs. Emma C Folsom, mother of Ex President Cleveland's wife, was to be married to-day to Henry E Perrine, a merchant of Buffalo.

Mrs. Folsom came here on the 8th instant, and has been quietly stopping with her relatives since. Mr Perrine has been at a hotel since Wednesday last

The rumor was corroborated last evening by the arrival of Mrs. Cleveland, who proceeded to the residence of her aunt, Mrs. Codman, where Mrs. Folsom was stopping. Extraordinary precautions had been taken to keep the affair quiet, and very few were cognizant of it until the last moment.

The wedding was solemnized at 9 o'clock this evening Rev R. B Balcom, of St. Paul's Episcopal church, officiating

The bride was attired in a traveling costume

Mr and Mrs Perrine left on the night train for Chicago and the West for a trip before returning to Buffalo to reside Mrs Cleveland will remain for a few days the guest of Mrs. Codman before leaving for home The groom is about fifteen years the senior of the bride, who is a well preserved woman of 45

THE CIVIL SERVICE.

A Question as to the Manner of Appointment of Census Clerks.

WASHINGTON May 20—The civil service commission will probably this week consider the question of whether or not the civil service rules shall be extended to the clerical force of the census bureau.

Attorney-General Miller has decided that under the law the secretary of the interior has the right to make appointments in this bureau without requesting a certified list of eligibles from the commission, but there is a disposition on the part of the civil service reformers to demand that this bureau shall be placed on a par with other departments

It is argued on the other hand, that there are hundreds of excellent clerks who have had experience in compiling returns from previous censuses who would be invaluable at the present time and that their chances for securing places through the civil service commission would be exceedingly slim, because of the great number of young men anxious to get into the federal service, who are fresher from college and more able to answer the questions propounded

THE BEHRING SEA DISPUTE.

Report That a British Man-of War Is to Investigate the Seizures.

OTTAWA May 20.—A report is current in official circles that a British man of war will shortly leave Victoria, B C for Behring sea to inquire into the seizures of British vessels by American revenue cutters.

AT THE STATE DEPARTMENT

WASHINGTON, May 20.—Inquiry at the department of state, based upon the report from Ottawa that a British war vessel is to be sent to Behring sea to investigate the seizures of illegal sealers, elicits the fact that nothing has been done by this government in the matter since the issue of the president's proclamation of the intention of the United States to protect seal and fish life from depredation.

It is presumed that the treasury department through the revenue marine service will carry out the provisions of the statutes, enacted to that effect, and at present the only government vessels in Alaskan waters are revenue cutters but they will soon be re-enforced by the man-of war Thetis which is now at San Francisco preparing for the summer cruise

CINCINNATI SALOON KEEPERS.

Those Arrested for Breaking the Sunday Law To Be Tried on Thursday.

CINCINNATI, May 20—The saloon keepers arrested yesterday for keeping their saloons open on Sunday were not tried to-day, the counsel agreeing to postpone the trial until Thursday

Louis Martin, who resisted the officers, was tried and found guilty. In passing sentence the judge took occasion to say that he would be severe in cases like this. He said, furthermore, that he would support, in every possible way, the organization of citizens now endeavoring to enforce the law.

With this emphatic announcement from the court the prospects are that there will be hereafter general compliance with the law, as no saloon keeper cares to do business in violation of the law, when conviction involves the certainty of imprisonment in the workhouse.

BAPTIST PUBLICATION SOCIETY.

The Sixty Fifth Annual Convention Begun at Boston

BOSTON May 20—The American Baptist Publication Society began its sixty fifth annual meeting here this afternoon

The report of the board of managers showed the total receipts of the year ending March 26, 1889, to be $656,361 The assets of the society amount to $791 691

The total number of copies of books, pamphlets, tracts and periodicals new and old, printed during the year is 30 108 390

Horatio G Jones president of the board of trustees of the George Nugent Home for Baptists, at Germantown, near Philadelphia, announced that the home had a foundation or endowment, of $350 000 and was ready to receive all Baptist ministers and their wives over 60 years of age

Arrested on a Charge of Smuggling.

NEW YORK, May 20—The custom house inspectors to-day arrested Pavier and Mary Arnold, husband and wife, who were passengers on the steamer La Champagne, as suspected smugglers. Nothing was found on the man, but in the dress of his wife were found twenty-six gold watches of Swiss make, and several chains, bracelets and trinkets. The value of the lot was estimated at $12,000. They were arraigned in court and held for examination.

CHICAGO'S DARK CRIMES

Horrible Revelations in the Asylum Investigation.

MURDERS OF A MOST BRUTAL TYPE

Large Rewards Offered by the Friends of Dr. Cronin for Information Concerning His Fate, Be It Life or Death

CHICAGO, May 20—The most horrible revelation made in the investigation of the Chicago public insane asylum was that reached to-day in the testimony of George Hill, a locomotive engineer, now employed on the Lake Shore & Michigan Southern railway He was admitted to the institution in January, 1888, suffering from a slight mental derangement, and was discharged as cured in May When he went to the asylum, an attendant named Lott asked him if he was insane. He said that he was not.

"Well replied Lott, "we will make you a G—d— sight saner than you are now

Another attendant, named Julian, ordered Hill to sweep out, and on his saying that he had not come there for that purpose knocked him down and kicked him in the body and mouth, knocking two teeth out. Hill tried to cover his face by getting his head beneath a bench, when Julian turned the bench over, breaking Hill's arm. Hill rolled up his coat sleeve in court, and showed a huge lump where the ends of the broken bones, badly joined, stood out. They knocked him down again, he said, and broke one of his ribs.

His arm caused him great pain, and he could not get proper treatment. He tried to see a doctor, but Julian told him that if he dared to speak he would kill him right there.

One day Hill had an opportunity of conversing with Supervisor Jones, and told him that he was badly treated. Afterwards two attendants knocked him down and held him, while Julian repeatedly kicked him in the head and breast. On getting up with the blood running from his face, Hill said he would have justice some day, whereupon Julian cursed him and knocked him down and kicked him again.

Hill said that a new patient, named Levy, was brought in one day He did not know enough to go to the dining room, attendants Julian and Lott knocked him down and jumped on his stomach, until he was unable to move They then picked him up and threw him on a bed. Levy died that night.

The court room was as still as death during this awful recital. Judge Pendergast instructed the witness to bring in his wife to corroborate his story, and a physician was detailed to examine Hill's arm and ribs

Several other witnesses testified to the brutality of the attendants, the miserable quality of the food, etc.

County Physician Todd testified that Robert Burns, whose death resulted in this investigation, did not die of consumption, as was stated by Superintendent Kiernan in the certificate of death.

THE HOME FOR INCURABLES.

CHICAGO, May 20—The defendants in the petitions for the dismissal of the matron of the Home for Incurables and certain of the officers of the institution for cruelty and mismanagement, file an answer to-day All of the charges are denied.

THE CRONIN MYSTERY.

Rewards Offered for the Arrest of the Guilty Parties and the Recovery of the Doctor's Body.

CHICAGO, May 20—A committee of Dr Cronin's friends to-night issued a circular giving the circumstances of the doctor's disappearance, reasserting the belief that he was murdered and adding "We hereby offer a reward of $5000 for any information that may lead to the arrest and conviction of any of the principals, or accessories in, or instigators of, this crime."

The circular further says "We are also authorized to offer a further reward of $7000 for any satisfactory evidence that will prove that he is not dead and that would lead to the discovery of his remains."

Woodruff the man who claims to have disposed of the mysterious trunk containing the remains of a woman, on the night Cronin disappeared, to-day told the police that the body when loaded into the wagon at the barn was taken from the cellar under the barn. The investigation by the police this afternoon disclosed the fact that there was a cellar there, and in it some bloody rags were found Traces of blood were also found in the stable proper

The Coming Regatta on Lake Washington—The Wrestling Match Off

SEATTLE, W. T., May 20.—William O'Connor, Henry Peterson, Albert Hamm and George W. Lee, the oarsmen, arrived in Seattle this morning and have already begun training for the race which is to take place on Lake Washington on Memorial day. The course will be three miles and turn. It is expected that Jacob Gaudaur will join the company. O'Connor says that the course on Lake Washington is the best he ever saw, and that he expects the race to be one of the greatest aquatic events of the year. The course at Tacoma was rough and no good time could be made there, but the water is quiet and smooth on the lake and is calculated for the making of fast time, and accordingly an effort will be made to break the record. O'Connor is anxious to secure the best American record before he rows Searle in London in September and he is satisfied that he can obtain it in the coming race.

The match between Peter Schumacher and Matsada Sorakichi arranged Saturday is probably off. Schumacher failed to put up the money.

MURDER AND SUICIDE.

The Terrible Crime of a Soldier at San Francisco

SAN FRANCISCO, May 20.—Donald McDonald, who is said to be a sergeant in the army stationed at the Presidio, shot and killed Ethel M. Anderson, daughter of a San Jose deputy sheriff and then committed suicide at 10 o'clock this morning. The couple had been living together. No cause is known for the trouble.

The dead girl ran away from her home in San Jose some time ago and immediately commenced consorting with dissolute characters. She came to this city and secured employment as waitress in a dive. Her father made several attempts to get her to return to her home but she would not listen to him or the friends he sent to counsel her.

About a week ago she met McDonald and went to live with him. The murderer brought his victim to a lodging house and introduced her as his wife. She was a pretty little blonde about 18 years of age.

Mrs. Mary Collins, who was employed as waitress in the same saloon with the dead girl and who was in the room at the time of the murder, tells the following story: "We were leaving the saloon early this morning and when we reached the sidewalk we met McDonald walking arm in arm with another girl. He stopped with the girl, and Ethel abused him for going with her. I do not know what happened after that, for I had to return to the saloon. When I came back McDonald was talking to Ethel and the other girl had disappeared. We all went to a room and I stopped there all night. McDonald got up about daylight, and said that he was going out to the presidio to report for guard duty. Ethel locked the door after he left and we both went to sleep. About 10:30 o'clock we were both awakened by hearing a knock on the door. Ethel got up to open it, and when McDonald entered he had a revolver in his hand. 'What have you to say before you die?' he asked as he raised the weapon. 'Nothing, Donald, nothing,' she answered, and began to cry. The next instant he fired, and she fell to the floor. When she was falling he fired two more shots at her. I was too frightened to speak. I crept under the bed to hide from him [illegible] pretty soon I heard one or two more shots, then all was still for a minute and I looked out from under the bed clothes. She was lying dead on the floor and he was dying on a lounge."

The murderer was sergeant in Battery A, First United States Artillery, located at Fort Mason. He was a Scotchman by birth, 34 years old, and had been in the military service of this country for nine years. Among his military associates he was known as an intelligent, sober and peaceable man, but he had a liking for low women. When in their company his entire character and disposition changed. For several months he was recruiting officer at the presidio. His superior officers speak very highly of him.

A BIG RACE AT FRESNO.

Preparations Being Made for a $20,000 Contest in September

FRESNO, Cal., May 20.—The Fresno Fair Ground Association is displaying great energy in preparing for the two miles and repeat race for $20,000 to be run September 20.

The conditions of the race provide that the entrance fee shall be 10 per cent. of the purse. The purse will be divided into four parts, $10,000 to go to the winner, $5000 to the second horse, $3000 to the third and $2000 to the fourth. Three horses to enter and two to start.

The American Association rules will govern the contest and any horse distancing the field or any part of it shall be entitled to the first money only. All nominations must be accompanied by a first payment, or they will not be recognized as entries and all future payments must be paid when due, or all the money paid will be forfeited, but in no case will the nominator be held for more than he has paid in. The entries close July 1st.

It is the intention of the association to induce Eastern owners to make entries for the event, and within the next few days Secretary Baldwin will start East, his mission being to secure entries. Should he succeed in getting such horses as The Bard, Firenzi, Exile or Spokane as nominations, great interest will be centered in the race and it is thought that the most important contest of the year will result.

AN ARTICLE ABOUT JESSE D. CARR.

Containing a Fund of Misinformation About the Applegate Family

SAN FRANCISCO, May 20.—The Chronicle prints a long article to-day of which the following is a synopsis: Jesse D. Carr's Clear Lake ranch in Northern California, which has been the object of much discussion of late, came into his possession at the close of the Modoc war. It is learned that some small portions of it were formerly owned by Jesse Applegate and his brothers, and that on some of the old maps it is still called Applegate's.

How and when the Applegates came in contact with Jesse D. Carr is not known, but it is generally believed that Carr loaned money on mortgages to the original Applegate, and then took him into his employ, as Applegate claimed to be a surveyor. The surviving Applegates are broken down and penniless. One is confined in the Oregon asylum and his only memory relates to Jesse D. Carr, who, it is popularly supposed, has been the cause of the ruin of the once flourishing Applegate family.

The land which Jesse D. Carr acquired from the Applegates was however only a few [illegible] acquisition of land to which [illegible] of the United States government has now been directed. The stone wall [illegible] tract of 40,000 acres is said to have cost in the neighborhood of $75,000, and also the lives of many Chinamen, the bones of whose skeletons are still bleaching alongside the scene of their labors. It is said there is now a resident on Tule lake, from Cornelius to Boddys, and from Louis Landes in Langell valley to the smallest land owner, that has not a grievance against Carr. Although Carr holds in Klamath county, Oregon, and Modoc county, California, some sixty thousand acres of land to which he has no title, he has been slowly driving into bankruptcy other stockmen, delayed settlement and otherwise retarded the progress of the county.

FROM TACOMA.

An Italian Held for Criminally Assaulting a Woman

TACOMA, W. T., May 20.—The examination of Joseph Capote, charged with criminally assaulting Mrs. Martha Rider on Friday evening last, was held in Justice Patrick's court this morning. Capote can not speak English well, and an interpreter was found necessary. Mrs. Rider was present at the examination and told her story in a plain straight forward manner. The Rider ranch is situated about six miles south of the city. The facts in the case according to Mrs. Rider's story are as follows: Mr. Rider, who is a carpenter, has been working in Tacoma while Mrs. Rider stayed alone on the ranch. The Italian lives a little beyond the home of the Riders. He was coming to town early Friday morning and was to bring down some eggs and butter for Mrs. Rider. He arrived at her house between 4 and 5 o'clock. Mrs. Rider brought the butter and eggs out into the yard. Capote threw her on the ground and assaulted her. Mrs. Rider defended herself and cried out, but there were no near neighbors to hear her. She afterwards stated that the Italian did not overcome her. Capote was held in $300 bail to await the action of the grand jury. He was committed to the county jail until he could furnish bonds.

LOS ANGELES, May 20.—F. O. Wharton, who has been in the City of Mexico working in the interests of a company of Boston capitalists who propose to construct a railway from the City of Mexico to some point in Southern California, is here, and in an interview says:

"Our people have been conducting their negotiations with great reserve. I have been seven weeks in the City of Mexico, conferring with Mexican capitalists. You would be surprised to know how favorable they are down there in Mexico to any railroad scheme or any enterprise that will tend to closer affiliation with the people of the United States. Only the lower and more ignorant classes entertain any prejudices or hostility to the United States. I met with the greatest encouragement in our enterprise and if our people will meet the Mexican capitalists half way, the line will be constructed. Work will probably be commenced on both ends at once and I think operations will not be very long deferred."

MATAAFA'S VOICE IS FOR PEACE

But Tamasese Is Still Sulky and Rebellious—Interesting Correspondence Between the King and Admiral Kimberly

[Copyrighted by the Associated Press, 1889.]

APIA, Samoa, May 1.—The shipwrecked officers and crews of the U. S. men-of-war Trenton and Vandalia leave here on the steamer Rockton to-day for Mare Island navy yard. Owing to reports which had been received here [illegible] it was thought that the Oceanic [illegible] steamer Mariposa would stop at Apia last Sunday, April 28, and take 300 of the men to San Francisco. Preparations were made for the Mariposa's arrival and the men were selected to take the steamer.

The steamer Lubeck arrived here from Sydney on Sunday and reported that Lieutenant J. C. Wilson, who was sent to Auckland and Sydney to charter a steamer, had engaged the 2000-ton steamer Rockton, belonging to the Australian United Steam Navigation Company. The Mariposa did not call at Apia at all, but passed the islands at Tutuila. The schooner which went to Tutuila to connect with the Mariposa had not returned at the time the Rockton sailed for America, and it was not known whether she had connected with the Mariposa or not.

The Mariposa was fully expected here and most of the mail for America was held to await her arrival. The United States mail was afterwards placed aboard the Rockton.

The Rockton arrived here from Sydney April 29, and when she was first sighted outside the harbor the Trenton and Vandalia sailors, who had been living in the barracks on shore since the storm, greeted her with loud cheering.

Lieutenant Wilson, who arrived on the Rockton, reported that he had the greatest difficulty in chartering a vessel. He was unable to procure one in Auckland and had obtained the Rockton in Sydney. He had fitted the vessel out with berths, mattresses and blankets for the accommodation of 450 men, and had also taken in a sufficient quantity of coal and provisions.

Admiral Kimberly decided to send away every man that the steamer could take. The work of loading the men and baggage on the Rockton commenced the next day. All of the survivors of the Vandalia, including 9 officers and 145 men, and 12 officers and 300 men from the Trenton, were sent aboard. Besides the admiral and his staff, ten officers and seventy five men remain here.

The Trenton officers who leave on the Rockton are as follows: Captain N. H. Farquhar, who is in command of the returning naval forces; Lieutenants R. M. J. Brown, L. L. Reamy and B. O. Scott; Assistant Surgeon S. S. White; Past Assistant Engineers H. Main and R. W. Galt; Assistant Engineer C. H. Matthews; Chaplain A. A. McAllister; Boatswain John M. Laughlin; Carpenter B. C. Fernald and Sailmaker S. H. Boutwell.

The Trenton officers who remain here are as follows: Rear Admiral L. A. Kimberly; Lieutenants H. O. Rittenhouse and G. A. Merriam, of the admiral's staff; Lieutenant Commander H. W. Lyon; Lieutenants S. L. Graham and W. H. Allen; Medical Inspector C. H. White (fleet surgeon); Past Assistant Surgeon E. Noolet; Pay Inspector O. J. Clark; Captain of Marines L. W. Huntington; Pay Clerk J. Brady; Acting Gunners John Westfall and H. J. Fresselt. Ensign J. J. Blondin and Chief Engineer A. J. Kielsted, of the Trenton, have been transferred to the Nipsic.

The surviving officers of the Vandalia who leave on the Rockton are as follows: Lieutenants J. W. Carlin and J. C. Wilson; Lieutenants (junior grade) A. F. Culver and F. R. Heath; Ensign J. H. Gibbons; Surgeon H. P. Harvey; Chief Engineer A. S. Greene and Past Assistant Engineer H. Webster.

The Rockton was anchored in the bay about a quarter of a mile from the shore and the men were commanded to go aboard in small boats about 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon. The Trenton's band was the first to go aboard, and as the boat left the dock the band played the national air and 500 sailors ashore united in a great cheer. Every boat was cheered heartily as it pushed off from shore. The boats had to pass close to the wrecks of the Trenton and Vandalia as they arrived out into the bay, and every boat load of sailors cheered the ships as they passed by. All the men and baggage were aboard before evening, but a few final arrangements were not completed and the Rockton was not able to sail until the following morning.

Nearly the whole population of Apia was on the beach when the steamer left her moorings and steamed out to sea, and for a few minutes loud hurrahs were heard in every direction. The crews of the men of war Nipsic and Royalist and the hundreds of people on the beach cheered the departing steamer, and the Trenton and Vandalia men on the decks of the Rockton returned the cheers with a will.

The Rockton will go direct to Mare Island. The seventy five men who remain here are in charge of Lieutenant Commander Lyon. It is supposed that they will either be sent home in the course of another month, or transferred to one of the American war ships which may arrive here.

The departure of the shipwrecked sailors is greeted with a feeling of relief, as Apia is not large enough to accommodate so great a number of men without great confusion resulting, and it has been feared that serious illness might break out in the town, owing to the crowded quarters of it.

MATAAFA TO ADMIRAL KIMBERLY.

Admiral Kimberly received the following letter from Mataafa a few days after he had issued a proclamation advising the natives to give up war:

MAGIAGI, 22d April, 1889.

L. A. Kimberly, Admiral of the American Fleet:

I and the chiefs and councillors of my government at Magiagi, having consulted together to-day, the 22d April, 1889, we are highly pleased with your proclamation. The kindness of the government of the United States is beyond comparison, and I am now able to understand it. To-day any desire for war with our kindred at Luatuanuu is finished. I declare the war which was carried on between this part of Samoa is at an end, because I earnestly desire that Samoa should find a state of prosperity (that the hatchet should be buried), and to give over to you the office of umpire between us both, and let us all work to the same purpose. Besides, I declare that Samoa would escape danger if the United States of America alone were to protect and give support to it, and be sole master of all Samoa, without interference of any other power. For in the years gone by we have been endeavoring to form a strong government on the basis of protection by the three powers, in consequence of which Samoa has been constantly torn to pieces and many lives lost, and the country has been brought down to a very low condition. On this account we are sure that a recurrence of the triple system would be useless. If now one power took charge of Samoa and continued to do so forever, then Samoa would, for the first time, enjoy standing and prosperity. I place every hope in your good wishes toward Samoa and hope you will not draw back from them. May you live.

Your brother (in the Lord)

MALIETOA MATAAFA, the King of Samoa.

A FINE REPLY.

Admiral Kimberly replied to Mataafa's letter as follows:

APIA, SAMOA, April 24, 1889.

To His Royal Highness Malietoa Mataafa:

Your letter dated April 22d, 1889, I received yesterday and read with great care and interest. The previous day I also received one from Tamasese. In it he says nothing of peace, except on conditions of submission. His heart has not yet been made penitent by the evils of war nor softened by the sufferings of the people. Your noble sentiments for the welfare of Samoa as shown in your sincere expressions for peace and by the councils of your chiefs and rulers prove that you and they have the true feelings that govern men who love their country better than themselves. Such men are those who bear the burdens and responsibilities of troublous times that surge over a land, as ocean waves surge against the shore. They are the strong men, against whom we all lean as the vine against the tree. May your services and wisdom long be spared to Samoa. The United States is now, as far as I know, in convention with the other two treaty powers, and I can assure you that as far as she is able her efforts will be directed to obtain those points that will advance and promote the interests of all Samoa in every respect, and the evils that have heretofore afflicted the country will, if not extinguished, at least be diminished. Have, therefore, good heart. The day of rest, and peace, and prosperity is not so far away but that its coming, like the dawn, can be seen before the rising of the sun. A copy of your letter will be forwarded by the first mail to Washington for the information of the government.

Trusting that you may have good health and that you may long be spared, I remain very respectfully, your obedient servant,

L. A. KIMBERLY,

Rear admiral U. S. navy, on Pacific station.

THE OTHER CORRESPONDENCE WITHHELD.

Admiral Kimberly declined to make the correspondence between himself and Tamasese public, stating that they must first go before the department at Washington.

An effort was made to obtain the correspondence between the admiral and Tamasese from Dr. Knappe, the German consul, but the latter declined to give it out for publication. Consul Knappe said that he did not think Admiral Kimberly's proclamation would amount to anything, as the Samoans were a lazy, indifferent people, and would read proclamations once and forget all about them afterward.

Dr. Steubel, the new German consul at Apia, arrived here on the steamer Lubeck from Sydney, April 28.

A SUPPLEMENTARY LETTER.

Containing the Substance of an Interview With Mataafa.

[Copyrighted 1889 by the Associated Press.]

APIA, Samoa, May 1.—The Associated Press correspondent had a short interview a few days ago with Mataafa. He said that his people were all greatly pleased with the advice published in Admiral Kimberly's proclamation, and felt very grateful for the interest which Americans had taken in their cause. The present war was a great hardship to the country, and the people wanted peace. They had no desire to fight Tamasese or the Germans. He said he hoped that German war ships now on their way to Samoa would not attack his people, or interfere at all in Samoan affairs. He said he would like to see the American government declare a protectorate over the Samoans. He thought that was the best way to avoid trouble, as the natives were continually fighting among themselves when the consuls of the United States, Germany and England had equal power.

Mataafa further stated that he was sorry his people had been forced into a fight with the German sailors last December, but he did not think the natives were at all to blame.

THE GERMANS BEGAN THE FIGHT.

Affidavits have been prepared, under direction of Mataafa, which have been forwarded to the state department at Washington as reference to the December fight, to be presented at the Berlin conference. These affidavits are made by Seumanu Tafa, chief of Apia and governor of the Tuamasaga district, and by a number of other natives who were present during the fight. [illegible]

An attack was made by [illegible]

Three nights ago, the sentinels at the Trenton's barracks saw half a dozen Germans, among whom were Consul Knappe and two naval officers, ride through the streets of Apia at 2 o'clock in the morning. They rode toward Mataafa's camp, but were ordered back by the native sentries under penalty of being fired upon if they refused. They retired without attempting to enter the camp.

NOTES FROM APIA.

The natives have succeeded in recovering the safe containing $1400 from the wreck of the German [illegible] It was placed as near the safe as possible and exploded. A part of the side of the vessel was blown out, and native divers attached ropes to the safe and raised it to the surface. It was taken to the house of the German resident, and a guard placed over it.

Native divers are still at work on the wreck of the Eber and are making an effort to save the guns. The library and other articles of value on the German cruiser Adler were taken ashore some time ago.

The rudder for the Nipsic, which Admiral Kimberly had made under his personal supervision, has been completed and placed in position. It is probable that the Nipsic will start for Auckland as soon as the Alert arrives here.

The British man of war Royalist, which left here ten days ago, returned on the 29th. It was supposed that she had gone to Fiji, but her captain reported upon his return that he had been to Suwarrow, a small island about 400 miles east of Samoa. He stated that the island was occupied several years ago by a resident of Auckland for the purpose of raising cocoanuts, and that at the latter's request the Royalist had gone there, raised the British flag and formally annexed the island as a part of the British possessions.

RETURN OF THE SURVIVORS.

Arrival of Eight Officers and Four Hundred and Fifty Men From Samoa.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 20.—The steamer Rockton, with six officers and 150 men of the Vandalia, two officers and 300 men of the Trenton, arrived this morning from Apia, under command of Captain N. H. Farquhar. Admiral Kimberly, ten officers and seventy five men were left at Apia.

LIEUTENANT FARQUHAR'S REPORT.

A Famine Now Prevailing Among the Unfortunate Samoans

WASHINGTON, May 20.—Commodore Walker, who is acting secretary of the navy, to-day received the following dispatch from Captain Farquhar, who commanded the Trenton:

SAN FRANCISCO, May 20.

Arrived. The Rockton, bound for Mare Island, with Captain Farquhar, Lieutenants Brown, Reamey and Scott, Passed Assistant Engineers Main, Galt and Matthews, Chaplain McAllister, Assistant Surgeon White, Boatswain McLaughlin, Carpenter Fernold, Sailmaker Boutwell, of the Trenton; Lieutenants Coplin, Wilson and Culver, Ensigns Gibbons and Heath, Chief Engineer Greene, Passed Assistant Engineer Webster, Surgeon Harvey, of the Vandalia; Ensign Field, of the Nipsic, and 308 men from the Trenton and 141 from the Vandalia. Seven officers and seventy six men were left at Samoa to finish the work of wrecking.

The admiral wishes a steamer sent for them. The steamers from Auckland are convenient if the department can arrange to have them call at Apia.

The admiral has issued a proclamation to the Samoans, advising peace. The armies are disbanding to await the action of the Berlin conference. There is a famine among the natives, caused by the destruction of the crops during the hurricane. The admiral requests authority to issue rations to them.

I am ordered to Washington, and will start as soon as possible. FARQUHAR.

[illegible] time must elapse before the next mail steamer leaves for Samoa, and the authority necessary to enable Admiral Kimberly to issue rations cannot be sent immediately.

NEW YORK COMMERCIAL REVIEW.

Effects of the Squeeze in O. & T.—Pacific Coast Products.

NEW YORK, May 20.—The contest for the control of the Oregon & Transcontinental election unquestionably was the absorbent of both floating and time money during the past week, but the supply was so great that it was without effect upon the money market. Foreign exchanges ruled firm, close to the shipping point, the demand being more than equal to the supply of commercial security bills.

Reports of railroad earnings generally continue to make favorable comparisons with those of 1888. The stock of the Oregon & Transcontinental Company for a long time has ruled between 30 and 33. For an indefinite period it has been sold for profit at about the highest figure named, and purchased at about the lowest, but as pessimistic views have ruled, average operators have preferred to sell on advances, and only to cover on declines.

If ten days ago any one had ventured to assert that there was a short interest in the stock, he would have been regarded as fully eligible for board at the insane asylum. Yet a sharp and seemingly close contest for control at the approaching election had developed a short interest of no inconsiderable magnitude. It so happens that the contest is so close that neither of the contestants has any stock for sale, but are soliciting proxies from other holders, notwithstanding that one of the parties asserts that it has in actual ownership 1700 shares, more than one half of the capital stock.

Wool—The largest movement shows itself in new wools from Texas and California, which in some cases are placed even before arrival, so that there is really no accumulation of stock. Among the sales were 110,000 pounds of Eastern Oregon, on private terms.

In the Philadelphia market the opportunity for selection from the present limited stock is so small that it puts the buyer at a disadvantage when he actually needs a certain amount of wool, and in order to get it he is generally compelled to pay comparatively full prices. On the other hand, the demand is so slight that any effort on the part of the dealer to force business would necessitate sharp concessions. Prices ruled about as follows: Oregon, eastern, No. 1, 17@19c; eastern No. 2, 19@21c; eastern heavy fine, 14@15c; valley No. 1, 24@27c; valley No. 2, 27@29c; No. 3, 21@23c.

In the Boston market trade and prices have been unsatisfactory. Among sales were 150,000 pounds of Eastern Oregon at 16@18c.

Fish—Though good brands of Columbia river salmon are offering freely at $1 60@1 67½, the job trade shows little disposition to open negotiations.

Hops—There are no new features in the market. State and coast crop advices are favorable. Current prices of the Pacific coast crop of 1888 are: Best 21c, fair to prime 18@20c, common 14@16c; 1887, 6@8c; 1886, 4@6c per pound.

A QUIET WEDDING.

Fannie Davenport, the Actress, and Her Leading Man Married in New York

NEW YORK, May 20.—Fannie Davenport and her leading man, Melbourne McDowell, were married privately last evening by Rev. C. H. Eaton, of the church of the Divine Paternity, East Forty-sixth street.

Mr. Eaton, a male relative of Miss Davenport, and the bride's niece were the only witnesses. They were married under the Universalist form with a ring.

The couple will probably go abroad.

In May, 1888, Miss Davenport obtained a divorce from Edward F. Price in this city. Dr. Houghton refused to perform the ceremony, as McDowell and Miss Davenport were both divorced.

A Coal Miners' Strike Declared Off.

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M., May 20.—The coal miners' strike at Gallup was declared off yesterday afternoon, after lasting for two months and causing untold misery to families in hard circumstances. The strike first originated from the talk of professional agitators, and when they saw that the companies did not intend to back down and imported negro miners from Kansas, a meeting was held and the strike came to an end. The superintendents of the various mines agreed to re-employ the good miners and drive the agitators from the camp, which was done.

Mark Lane Review.

LONDON, May 20.—The Mark Lane Express says English wheats are dull, flour, 6d lower. Foreign wheats have declined 6d. The values of oats are sustained. Corn is weak.

At to-day's market there was a further fall of 6d in English wheat. Foreign wheat was also weaker. California, which sold at 36s last Monday, sold to-day at 35s 9d. Red American declined 6d. The flour trade dropped 6d. Corn was stronger.

The Council Meets and Transacts a Lot of Routine Business.

Mrs. Snead Held to Answer—Mayor Wheeler's Condition Unchanged—Large Strawberries—Other News

A regular meeting of the city council [illegible] last night [illegible]

A communication was received from R. Scott & [illegible] and a number of citizens [illegible] of the southern part of the city, representing that the portion of the city is inaccessible by any street or other public highway [illegible] a large area of land lying [illegible] high ground admirably adapted for family residence property [illegible] which has lately been laid out [illegible] blocks with streets [illegible] that the opening of Ellsworth street full width from Fifth to Seventh streets and the opening of Seventh street from Ellsworth southward to Center street would open up this portion of the city and connect it with the present improved system of streets. The letter was referred to the street committee.

DETAILED REPORT

PETITIONS.

From City Marshal Morgan that C. P. Wase had been appointed special policeman at the Centenary M. E. church; confirmed.

From James Fraincy asking for an extension of thirty days to complete his contract on Twelfth street; granted.

From James Fraincy asking permission to dump gravel at Fourth and E streets; referred to street committee.

From the Oregon Real Estate Company asking for the establishment of grades in Holladay's addition; granted.

From S. Finn asking permission to pay delinquent taxes on property sold for taxes without redeeming the same; referred to the city attorney and recorder.

From F. C. Woodward asking for an appointment as a regular policeman; referred to health and police committee.

From C. N. Runkle asking the council to refund $4 44 paid by him for delinquent taxes on property on which taxes had been paid; granted.

COMMUNICATIONS.

From Secretary Thorp, of the fire department, that the fire delegates had voted to retain Frank Payne as engineer of Pioneer Engine company; confirmed.

From the Oregon Real Estate Company, that a number of people have built houses in streets in Holladay's addition and have refused to vacate the same, although notified to do so, and asking the city council to take action requiring them to move their buildings from the streets. The petition recites that the company desires to improve the streets that are occupied. The recorder was instructed to notify the company to make formal complaint of the parties.

From H. A. Hogue and a number of others, petitioning the council to notify the people who live in the scows on Water street near the East Side approach to the Morrison street bridge to remove. They complain that these people are squatters, that they have no visible means of support and are objectionable. The communication was referred to the city attorney and marshal.

REPORTS.

From the committee on streets and public property, recommending that the city accept the proposition of the Portland Real Estate Company to furnish $300 for building a bridge across Sullivan's gulch on Twelfth street, provided the company will extend its improvement to Halsey street; adopted.

From Marshal William Morgan, submitting the following report of his collections of delinquent taxes for the year: Amount of delinquent taxes returned by the treasurer, $4 80 12; amount collected and turned over to the treasurer, $4395 1.; amount uncollected, $160 11; amount wrongfully assessed, $134 77; total, $4539 79; referred to ways and means committee.

Providing for the improvement of D street between Second and Seventh, in McMillen's addition; passed.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Lewis moved that a warrant be drawn for M. G. Smith for $15, for his services as janitor; carried.

Marshal Morgan called attention to the fact that there is a great deal of stock running about, there being no poundmaster now; referred to the marshal.

Halfpenny called attention to the condition of Hawthorne avenue, which has caused much complaint. An effort was made to change the grade, but it was defeated by a remonstrance. The people are blaming the city council for not making the change, when in truth the blame is with those who remonstrated against it. He said the Hawthorne Railway Company is grading for its track and it is apparent that the change should be made.

The recorder was instructed to notify Mr. Kerns not to begin work on Fifth street until the contract for the same has been signed.

OTHER NEWS ITEMS.

LARGE STRAWBERRIES.

Several days ago there appeared in THE OREGONIAN a challenge from an Eastern Oregon man to any one who could show a strawberry measuring more than seven inches in circumference. Mr. Thomas McManus brought in a box of large strawberries yesterday, the smallest of which was seven and one-half inches in circumference, and the largest nine and a quarter inches. This is a conclusive answer to the challenge issued by the Eastern Oregon man, and he will have to come again and "raise McManus a few." Then for his further encouragement, be it said, that McManus has in reserve strawberries that measure fifteen inches in circumference, which he will trot out in the next contest.

EXCURSION.

The arrangements are completed for the annual excursion and basket picnic of the Centenary M. E. Sunday school. The steamer Multnomah will leave Ash street dock, Portland, at 7:15, and Johnson's wharf, East Portland, at 7:30, next Saturday, May 25. If the day is pleasant the picnic will be held at Columbia Grove. If stormy, they will go to the Cascades. Tickets, adults $1, children under 12 years of age, 50 cents, for those not members of the school. The committee is endeavoring to arrange it so that those who go will be sure to have a good time. There will be a refreshment stand on the boat and at the picnic grounds.

THE WOUNDED WOMAN.

The condition of Mrs. McConnell, who was stabbed by her father in law last Saturday, is not changed. She has been suffering a great deal of pain and is unable to move. Dr. Frazey stated that the woman is getting along as well as could be expected, and unless inflammation sets in, the chances of her recovery are fair. It is not known positively what sort of a knife was used, other than the statement from the old man, who said it was a broken caseknife. The woman thinks it was a butcher knife.

TRIAL TRIP.

Motor No. 8, one of the motors received from the Baldwin Locomotive Works by the Portland & Vancouver Railroad Company, made its trial trip yesterday. She went around the curves very well and over the track as smoothly as could be wished. Besides the engineer and fireman, Superintendent Grimes, Mr. H. H. Holmes and the East Side reporter were on the motor. In a few days the new motor will go into service.

BOUND OVER.

Mrs. Annie Snead, charged with stealing $356 from the Riverside hotel, had an examination before Justice Mayo yesterday and was held in $500 bail to answer before the grand jury. She admitted she was in the hotel when the money was taken, but denied taking it. It was shown that she went into the room where the money was and that no one else went into the room until the money was missed.

RETURNED HOME.

Councilman Hardie has returned from east of the mountains, where he has been for the past few weeks. He went for his health, but found the weather stormy and was unable to go into the mountains. He was at La Grande for some time.

CONFERENCE.

Question—[illegible] asking for proxies [illegible]

Answer—In the last days of August, Elijah Smith and several other directors of Oregon & Transcontinental Company, prominent Boston [illegible] and Holly [illegible] my office [illegible] Friday afternoon. They [illegible] in a great state of excitement [illegible] Smith needed money badly [illegible] call loans [illegible] the Oregon & Transcontinental Company were being called right and left, every effort had been made to [illegible] calls, but that the company was no longer able to raise a dollar, and unless it had immediate [illegible] it would be obliged to go to the wall. The [illegible] was represented to be so grave and urgent [illegible] my immediate personal intervention [illegible] of the holders of the call loans was urged. [illegible] Smith implored me to interpose. He [illegible] resign [illegible] the presidency of the [illegible] & Transcontinental Company, the Oregon Railway & Navigation Company and the Oregon [illegible] Company in my favor, and [illegible] all proxies he and his friends had gathered [illegible] Northern Pacific Company for the [illegible] election three weeks later unconditionally [illegible] hands. The cause of the embarrassment [illegible] himself and of the company were thus [illegible] to me at the time. Smith had held $4 [illegible] Oregon Railway & Navigation 5 per cent. [illegible] dated mortgage bonds for a prominent [illegible] firm at [illegible] a personal interest [illegible] The bank [illegible] firm was given a certain [illegible] take them [illegible] for them but [illegible] unable to [illegible] or take them up owing to [illegible] rate for money. Further Smith had [illegible] satisfy his [illegible] of the Northern Pacific [illegible] in the market and bought [illegible] of the Oregon & Transcontinental [illegible] 90,000 shares of Northern Pacific stock [illegible] was carrying through call loans. I was [illegible] $4,000,000 of immediate cash was needed [illegible] the company and to prevent a panic [illegible] street which [illegible] would surely take place if the [illegible] became known [illegible] already prevailed. After a short [illegible] solved to make an effort to prevent [illegible] I made the [illegible] furnished with $4,000,000 [illegible] transfers. This enabled [illegible] of securities [illegible] failure.

[illegible]

Question—What made you consent to [illegible] president of the Oregon & Transcontinental [illegible]

Answer—From that time forward it was [illegible] personal friends, original Oregon & Transcontinental stockholders and others, that it was due to the [illegible] of the company's [illegible] to make every possible effort to rehabilitate [illegible] Knowing that I could not comply [illegible] taking care of the [illegible] indebtedness of the company and providing a working capital, I would not consent unless [illegible] personally consulted last April, [illegible] my friends abroad, for which purpose [illegible] Having received their consent [illegible] chased [illegible] account with American [illegible] 50,000 shares of Oregon & Transcontinental [illegible] in the open market, making us the largest holders [illegible] As [illegible] continued [illegible] stockholders I have labored [illegible] to bring about the double [illegible] of paying off the company's floating [illegible] providing it with a large working capital for its operations.

Question—In the third affidavit which [illegible] in reply to the complaint by which [illegible] porary injunction to restrain the issue of [illegible] 000 Oregon & Transcontinental preferred was obtained, you strenuously deny any [illegible] the [illegible] for the purpose of voting [illegible]

Answer—[illegible] never was a more absolute [illegible] ation than I [illegible] I submit [illegible] correspondence with the officers [illegible] Transcontinental company [illegible] regarding the issue of [illegible] was no ground for the charge [illegible] my personal [illegible] and the latter [illegible] question of [illegible] stock should be submitted [illegible] from the [illegible] of the company [illegible] regard [illegible] directors he [illegible] reference [illegible] the election [illegible] was desirable. This [illegible] several of whom [illegible] telegraph [illegible] and that [illegible] kept secret [illegible] reasons [illegible]

[illegible] It would have been absolutely impossible [illegible] their maneuvers in thoroughly frightening [illegible] holders into selling their stock. I think [illegible] record of transfers will show that the ownership of the stock has changed within three weeks. Large quantities of stock received at the company's office that had evidently been lying quietly in strong boxes [illegible] years. I regret very much in the interest of old stockholders that they have become [illegible] of the bluff game that seems to have been deliberately played upon them.

MR. VILLARD'S VERSION

The Financier Interviewed by His Typewriter.

PAGES OF WALL STREET HISTORY

Mr Elijah Smith Is an Ingrate, and His Claims Are Preposterous, While Mr Villard's Heart Bleeds for the Stockholders

NEW YORK, May 20—A Tribune reporter yesterday went to Henry Villard's country seat at Dobbs Ferry, on the Hudson for the purpose of obtaining a statement from him regarding Oregon & Transcontinental affairs He was courteously received. The following colloquy took place

Mr Villard—I came up here on Friday afternoon for two days rest I have made it an invariable rule heretofore to decline interviews with representatives of the press in my country retreat, but under the extraordinary circumstances that have occurred during the last week I consider it my duty to make an exception to the rule and as you are the first reporter that finds me in this mood, I will take pleasure in answering any proper questions that you may desire to ask me

Question—I have noticed two advertisements in the newspapers asking for proxies of Oregon & Transcontinental stockholders, one signed by yourself and others the other by Elijah Smith and others. What are the opposing interests in the pending contest?

Answer—The opposing interests are the Oregon & Transcontinental Company on the one hand, and the Union Pacific and Oregon Short Line companies on the other

Question—How do these interests come to be opposed to each other?

Answer—The Oregon & Transcontinental Company holds upward of $1,0 0 000 of the stock of the Oregon Railway & Navigation Company, being a majority of the whole stock of this company This last named company is leased to the Oregon Short Line Company on a 6 per cent rental, and the Union Pacific Company guarantees the rental. Is it not easy to see that if the Union Pacific and Short Line interest controls the Oregon & Transcontinental it controls also the voting power of the Oregon Railway & Navigation Company and can thus vote on both sides of the table on any proposition to modify the lease either as to the amount of rental or as to any other matter connected with it? The interest of the Oregon & Transcontinental Company as the chief owner of the Oregon Railway & Navigation Company is that the terms of the lease should not be modified to its disadvantage, and at all events that its interests shall be represented by its owners and not by the lessee of the property

Question—Has Elijah Smith any particular reason for personal hostility to you in the contest for the control of the Oregon & Transcontinental Company?

Answer—He is the last man in the world who should entertain any other feelings than those of friendship and gratitude towards me

Question—Will you say what you mean by this?

Answer—In the last days of August, 1887 Elijah Smith and several other directors of the Oregon & Transcontinental Company and a prominent Boston banker suddenly appeared in my office one Friday afternoon They informed me in a great state of excitement that Elijah Smith needed money badly that several millions call loans due by the Oregon & Transcontinental Company were being called right and left that every effort had been made to respond to the calls but that the company was no longer able to raise a dollar, and unless it had immediate relief it would be obliged to go to the wall. The danger was represented to be so grave and urgent that my immediate personal intervention with some of the holders of the call loans was urged Elijah Smith implored me to interpose He offered to resign immediately the presidency of the Oregon & Transcontinental Company, the Oregon Railway & Navigation Company and the Oregon Improvement Company in my favor, and to place all proxies he and his friends had gathered of the Northern Pacific Company for the impending election three weeks later, unconditionally in my hands. The causes of the embarrassment of himself and of the company were thus explained to me at the time Smith had held $4,000 000 of Oregon Railway & Navigation 5 per cent consolidated mortgage bonds for a prominent banking firm and had taken a personal interest with them The banking firm was given a certain time to take them up and pay for them but found itself unable to sell or take them up, owing to the high rate for money Further, Smith had, in order to satisfy his ambition of becoming president of the Northern Pacific gone into the market and bought for account of the Oregon & Transcontinental Company, 70 000 shares of Northern Pacific stock which he was carrying through call loans. I was told that $5 000 000 of immediate cash was needed to save the company and to prevent a panic in Wall street, which the most experienced bankers thought would surely take place if the company became bankrupt, as a great stringency of money already prevailed. After a short reflection I resolved to make an effort to prevent that disaster I made the strongest possible appeal to my foreign friends, and within forty-eight hours I was furnished with $5,000,000 of actual cash by cable transfers This enabled me to place sufficient cash in the treasury of the company by purchase of securities which nobody else was willing to buy at the time, and thus to save it from actual failure.

I declined to accept the presidency offered to me, but I accepted the Northern Pacific proxies and succeeded in arranging with the old Northern Pacific directors for a compromise board, including myself Elijah Smith was very anxious to go into the board but I refused to name him for a place, which is no doubt one of his grievances I also helped him to obtain $.5,000 as one year's additional salary as president of the Oregon & Transcontinental Company I recall these facts in view of the ridiculous statements that have been circulated in the press and have received I regret to say, some credence that I who had then prevented the collapse of the Oregon & Transcontinental Company, was now bent upon injuring it It will not be amiss to add that neither Sidney Dillon nor F L Ames, who were then directors of the company, offered to put up a single dollar for its salvation

Question—What made you consent to become president of the Oregon & Transcontinental Company at the last annual election no withstanding your declination of the place at the time you spoke of?

Answer—From that time forward it was urged by personal friends original Oregon & Transcontinental stockholders and others that it was my duty to take charge of the company's affairs and to make every possible effort to rehabilitate it Knowing that I could not comply with their wishes without being sure of a strong financial backing enabling me to take care of the floating indebtedness of the company and provide it with a working capital, I would not consent until I had personally consulted last April, a year ago with my friends abroad for which purpose I went to Germany Having received their consent we purchased for joint account with American friends, 50,000 shares of Oregon & Transcontinental stock in the open market, making us the largest stockholders at that time and ever since As set forth in the circular just issued to the Oregon & Transcontinental stockholders, I have labored incessantly ever since to bring about the double object of paying off the company's floating debt and providing it with a large working capital for active operations.

Question—In the third affidavit which you have made in reply to the complaint by which a temporary injunction to restrain the issue of $10 000 000 Oregon & Transcontinental preferred stock was obtained, you strenuously deny any intention to make a secret issue of the stock as alleged in the complaint for the purpose of voting it at the ensuing election?

Answer—There never was a more absolute falsehood than the allegation that I intended to make a secret issue of the stock. I submitted my entire telegraphic correspondence with the officers of the Oregon & Transcontinental company, including all my instructions regarding the issue of the preferred stock to the court, which was at once satisfied that there was no ground for the charge and revoked the order for my personal examination, obtained by complainants, and the latter had to accept a stipulation that the question of the issue of the preferred stock should be submitted to the stockholders at the impending annual meeting As shown by my telegraphic instructions referred to, this was my intention from the beginning The whole difficulty arose from the mistaken zeal of the secretary of the company at Portland When he received the resolutions regarding the issue of preferred stock which were to be submitted to the board of directors he assumed of his own accord, that the issue was made with reference to the election, and that therefore secrecy was desirable This he foolishly enjoined upon the directors, several of whom very properly refused to maintain it. The moment I learned of his false impression, by telegraph I wired him that there was no intention to issue the stock before the annual election and that just as I wished the proceedings kept secret, I especially desired for obvious reasons that they should become public

The most extraordinary part of the injunction proceedings is this Elijah Smith ... immediately adjoins that of the Oregon & Transcontinental, in the Mills building He and every stockholder, and, of course every Eastern director of the company could have ascertained at any time the exact facts of the case by simply applying at the company's office and asking the necessary question of the assistant secretary in charge or of myself Moreover no reputable banker or broker would have been refused the information upon application. It is certainly a very extraordinary fact that neither Elijah Smith nor Sidney Dillon nor Gardiner M Lane the directors representing the Union Pacific nor any Wall street banker or broker, ever took the trouble of asking the assistant secretary or me a single question on the subject. It only shows how easily Wall street is gulled. However, as regards Smith and his confederates, it seems to be obvious that in their attempt to procure control of the Oregon & Transcontinental Company, they had a special motive in alarming our stockholders through the loudest racket in the courts, in the press and otherwise. Everybody knows that they have bought enormous quantities of stock within the last two weeks, before the closing of the books It would have been absolutely impossible for them to obtain it if they had not succeeded by their maneuvers in thoroughly frightening the old holders into selling their stock I think that the record of transfers will show that the entire ownership of the stock has changed within the last three weeks. Large quantities of stock were received at the company's office that had evidently been lying quietly in strong boxes for years. I regret very much, in the interest of the old stockholders that they have become victims of the bluff game that seems to have been thus deliberately played upon them

Question—From the circular calling for proxies issued by the opposing party and signed by Frederick L Ames, Sidney Dillon, Elijah Smith, John H. Hall and Samuel Thomas it is evident that the St. Paul, Minneapolis & Manitoba Railway Company is one of the party in the combination that is trying to get control of the Oregon Transcontinental Company This is an unexpected revelation to the public Have you anything to say regarding it.

Answer—Yes. A good deal. The combination has been no surprise to me for I have known for weeks that James J Hill, General Samuel Thomas and also Calvin S Brice were parties to the combination Possessing this knowledge it became the more my duty to prevent its success in the interest of the Oregon & Transcontinental Company, not only as holder of the majority of the stock of the Oregon Railway & Navigation Company, but as the largest holder of that of the Northern Pacific railroad I have known moreover that the Union Pacific and the St Paul Minneapolis & Manitoba Company had begun months ago to arrange traffic combinations against the Northern Pacific I feel under the greatest obligations to the signers of the circular in thus openly announcing their alliance It will open the eyes not only of the Oregon & Transcontinental but also of the Northern Pacific stockholders, to the imminent danger they have escaped through my success in holding the control of the Oregon & Transcontinental Company The composition of the alliance is another illustration of the old fable of the wolves trying to herd the sheep

The idea of the St Paul, Minneapolis & Manitoba Company, the traditional enemy of the Northern Pacific becoming the protector of the Northern Pacific stockholders! Why that company has been the most aggressive competitor of the Northern Pacific in Minnesota and Dakota for fifteen years and within a year has completed as is well known 700 miles of road paralleling the Northern Pacific all the way to the heart of Montana All the friends of James J Hill know, moreover that his great ambition is to continue his line from Helena to the Pacific coast As I said I cannot be too grateful to these gentlemen for showing their hands, for I am sure it will arouse every independent holder of Northern Pacific stock to the mortal perils that would befall the company if James J Hill acquired control over it I don't wonder that his appetite has been whetted in that direction for while the Northern Pacific earnings have shown a steady increase in the last two years, those of his own company as everybody knows have undergone an enormous decrease since last fall To divert traffic from the Northern Pacific system to his own would of course be a very easy and effective means of making up his loss It is no wonder considering the recent decline in the Union Pacific earnings, that it is also hungry for the same prey

Question—It is stated in the proxy circular of your opponents that the issue of $10 000,000 Oregon & Transcontinental preferred stock, secured by $12 000 000 of Oregon Railway & Navigation Company stock, would be a great injury to the Oregon & Transcontinental stockholders

Answer—This is about as bold a misstatement as that representing the St Paul, Minneapolis & Manitoba Railway Company as a rightful champion of the Northern Pacific stockholders. The simple truth is that it would be the very best thing for the Oregon & Transcontinental company If I succeeded as I expected before this trouble began in placing $10,000 000 of preferred stock, secured in the manner stated, at par for it would preserve intact the most valuable asset of the company represented by its majority holding of Oregon Railway & Navigation Company stock and result in paying off its entire floating debt and leave $4 000 600 as working capital in its treasury There would also be an overflow of $120,000 a year from the excess of the Oregon Railway & Navigation Company's dividends over those of the preferred stock

I can tell you a grim joke in connection with this I hold in my possession a draft of an agreement between the presidents of the Union Pacific, Oregon Short Line, Northern Pacific and Oregon & Transcontinental Companies drawn by Messrs Dillon and Swayne, the very lawyers that are the complainants attorneys in the injunction suit and by another Union Pacific lawyer providing for the issue of $12,000,000 of Oregon & Transcontinental Company bonds, against $12,000,000 of Oregon Railway & Navigation Company stock This agreement had the full assent of the president of the Union Pacific and Oregon Short Line Company, and, for several weeks he professed the strongest anxiety to have it assented to by the Northern Pacific and Oregon & Transcontinental Company In other words, the signers of the opposition circular pronounce the issue of $10,000,000 of Oregon & Transcontinental preferred stock as injurious to the stockholders of the company but they were perfectly willing until lately, that $12 000,000 of bonds should be placed ahead of them

Question—Do you wish to say anything about the letter of President Charles F Adams concerning a reduction of Oregon Railway & Navigation Company dividends which was embodied in your second affidavit?

Answer—As it speaks for itself, I will only add that besides sending the letter to the Oregon & Transcontinental directors he sent officially a copy of it to the Northern Pacific board

Question—Is it true, Mr Villard, that you and your friends own an absolute majority of the outstanding Oregon & Transcontinental Company's stock?

Answer—Yes sir, it is absolutely true. We hold nearly 202,000 shares, and in addition I have already proxies in my hands for about 5000 more shares I know the other side does not believe that we have secured control but it is my intention as soon as the stock ledger of the Oregon & Transcontinental Company is written up to invite a committee of three neutral bankers of prominence to prove our holdings by the footings on the ledger in order to establish the fact of our victory beyond ... I am sure the public will agree with ... that in the fact that myself and friends have invested over $7,000 000 in this majority interest it is the best possible proof of the earnestness of our purpose to rehabilitate the company and also the strongest possible guarantee that we cannot do anything contrary to its best interests without hurting ourselves more than anybody else

Question—Some people think that you have been instrumental in bringing about the present corner in Oregon & Transcontinental Company stock Is there any foundation for this?

Answer—It is absolutely untrue We have done nothing beyond buying stock, paying for it, and holding on to it I presume the other side has done the same The corner must be therefore, simply due to the foolishness of the shorts in selling more stock than there is I took occasion every day in the last fortnight in my office to caution against just this contingency, but I regret to say that in some cases at least, my advice was not heeded I am very anxious to put an end to the distressing state of things at the stock exchange, and I am thinking somewhat of proposing to the other side that each shall contribute 10 000 shares of our holdings for the relief of the market—of course, under proper conditions and restrictions

PORTLAND, TUESDAY, MAY 21.

CONGRESSMEN AND THE APPOINTMENTS.

The mugwump doctrine is, that "members of congress should never in any circumstances busy themselves getting offices for anybody." This is a plausible statement, and rests on the popular opinion that congressmen if consulted, will be sure to try and persuade the president to plant nobody but their devoted strikers in the post holes of the Federal service. Let us assume that the president obedient to this judgment does not consult congressmen concerning appointments—then comes the question whom shall he consult. He has no personal knowledge of the qualifications of the vast majority of the applicants, and, if he refuses to advise with the congressional delegation, he is quite likely to advise with local political factions and rings who are generally far inferior to the rejected congressional delegation in intelligence and candor. Town, county, or state committees or local party newspapers, are not more likely to be unselfish or impartial in their opinions of the worth of the candidates for appointment than other persons who are both in position to advise the president and entirely willing to pump him full of counsel. The president cannot unhesitatingly accept the picture of the candidate as drawn by his own hand, as an absolutely speaking and truthful likeness. Granting it true that congressmen, who are warm-blooded enough to be grateful or cold blooded enough to be selfish, wish to get offices for friends whose support and labors sent them to congress and are necessary to secure their re-election—granting this, we say, is the counsel of such congressmen any more to be distrusted, any less valuable, than that of the fellows who are "out" and want to be "in" the good offices? Every community is so closely bound together by ties of friendship and business self-interest that just so long as there are any government offices to bestow, just so long the advice the president gets concerning Federal appointments from local sources of information will, consciously or unconsciously be colored with class or personal likes and dislikes with public or private jealousy or rivalship in business or outside of it and it is quite probable that a president who took the advice of congressmen would make fewer mistakes than he would if he consulted unofficial sources of information.

It has always been the case that save in times of war when civic enthusiasm hails the successful warrior as a hero and a tidal wave of inestimable popular gratitude drowns out all meaner sentiments, the man who has the strongest and most potent "pull" for public office, is he who has made himself useful to the political powers that be, or promises to be useful in that direction. That is the instinct the trend of human nature. "You tickle me or promise to tickle me and I'll tickle you," not only is the invariable principle of action enforced by congressmen or the powers that be but it is the principle of those who are not the political powers that be, but are anxious to kill the present incumbent and ride in his saddle. There are exceptional states where the congressional delegation includes men, who are not simply selfish men but are corrupt men in whom integrity truth or purity public or private, never rooted and of course in such cases a president would better consult any source of local information concerning candidates rather than such corrupt congressmen but the rule is the other way. The majority of congressmen are selfish but very few of them are corrupt, or venal, or dissolute to the point of total depravity in all the relations of life political, civic and social. The president therefore if he should as a rule utterly ignore congressmen as a respectable source of advice concerning political appointments and accept only the endorsements of those who desire to upset the local powers that be and mount in their places would probably reach a worse result. Corruption venality and general depravity can not be trusted while selfishness, married to public and private integrity safely can be.

As a rule it may be said that if the congressional delegation is respectable in reputation for public and private integrity and dignity of character the president would be safe to take their advice as to appointments, since they are more intelligent and at least not more selfish than those who want to secure their seats. But of course the president ought to treat with contempt and distrust the recommendations of a man whose general repute for venality, trickery duplicity and inveracity was so notorious as to make him a mere target for satire tipped arrows of his official colleagues.

BIRDS VS. INSECTS.

A New Hampshire paper has lately been devoting considerable space and apparently much research to the problem of insect pests. As a result of its labors it finds that one-third of the product of the farmer's toil is confiscated by plagues of various kinds that swarm the insect realm. Not content with this discouraging computation it predicts that the earth is about to enter the insect age as it has already passed through the ages of fishes and reptiles and is now in that of mammals. Supplementing this prophecy is urgent advice to the farmer to rush to the defense of the vegetable kingdom by aggressive warfare upon these all pervading pests. The torch is the means suggested as the best that can be used in this offensive and defensive warfare. Most of these insects are night flyers and the blind frenzy that possesses winged things of the night to fly into lights is depended upon to make torches and bonfires available for this purpose.

While it is not probable that vegetable life is going to be given over entirely to the voracious little creatures of the insect world, it is an undeniable fact that they are doing a thriving business in the way of devouring vegetation and propagating their species. Whether they are more voracious or more prolific than in past years, or whether the awakened intelligence of the farmer takes more note of them than formerly is an open question. Probabilities are at least equally in favor of the latter supposition. Be this as it may vigilant effort looking toward their extermination is prudent and timely. Torches and bonfires might prove a fatal allurement to hundreds of thousands of winged insects but why not abolish the shot gun and give the birds a chance at the insects?

Insectivorous birds multiply with astonishing rapidity when not interfered with by so-called sportsmen. Farmers can prohibit shooting upon their grounds and in this way give the birds a chance to protect their crops. This is an easy, natural and efficacious way to accomplish a desirable and necessary decimation in the world of swarming voracious insect life.

A most judicious appointment of the president is that of ex Representative John R. Lynch of Mississippi to the place of fourth auditor of the treasury. Lynch is a colored man of excellent character and business ability, who in congress acquitted himself with great credit both as an orator and a working member in committee. He has acquired a handsome property by his own exertions since he ceased to be a slave and has gained the respect and esteem of all decent and fair-minded men among his white neighbors. He has been conspicuous for the kind relations he has always maintained with the family who in youth owned him as a slave. Lynch has been a delegate to the republican national conventions for the last twenty years and has always borne himself well. President Harrison shows sound common sense in appointing a Southern negro, once a slave, to a public office for which he is fitted by his intelligence, his business ability and his personal character. To appoint a worthless Southern colored republican on the score of color would be folly, but Harrison by this appointment significantly says to the colored republicans of the South "I will not appoint a man to public office because he is black or because he is a republican, if he is not worthy, but colored men who are intelligent upright and competent are sure of recognition." This is true kindness to the colored race, because it is an object lesson that tells every negro that he must have brains and character in order to expect a federal office.

MORMON PERSISTENCE.

Mormons have been struggling for a number of years to gain a foothold in Clay county Ala, succeeding as persistent endeavor succeeds everywhere in making steady gains, despite the opposition of public sentiment in the community. A few days ago a number of indignant citizens made a raid on one of the most flourishing churches of this sect in the county and succeeded in breaking up the organization and forcing the elders to depart.

While such procedure is in opposition to the spirit of religious freedom that is guaranteed and fostered by our institutions, it is at least partially justified in this instance by the disgrace, social and otherwise that the establishment of such a sect brings upon a community. The institution of polygamy, which is the distinguishing infamy of the Mormon church, soon involves the social interests of a community in a way that renders its hold exceedingly tenacious of life and peace. It is against this feature that decent public sentiment is everywhere at war. Its results wherever it has gained a hold have justified law-abiding people in the resolve to prevent even by the use of the most arbitrary means, when necessary, the establishment of this law breaking element among them.

The trouble with such opposition as this is that it is necessarily spasmodic while the effort of the force against which it is thrown is silent, persistent and constant. The Mormons as a sect excel in the exercise of calm deliberate purpose—purpose of the kind that does not speak of its intent, and keeps on steadily and unswervingly in the direction of its object. It recks little of the present being content to work for the future, prates not of its methods, being satisfied that they will win in the end, succumbs to all outward appearance, when assailed by violence or indignant protest, but appears again serene and unmoved after the tempest of opposition has spent its brief force. It has all the advantage over resentful public opinion in aggregate that a cool silent and determined man has in individual cases over a hot headed blustering adversary, whose rage flames up under extreme provocation and quickly burns itself out.

Two or three years ago the Mormons were driven, so it was proclaimed, from this same section of Alabama. The insufficiency of spasmodic treatment is witnessed in the recent proclamation that they are again driven out. This sort of warfare will probably continue at intervals more or less frequent until placid persistence will win its accustomed victory, and a Mormon colony will be one of the acknowledged social and religious institutions of that state.

A STRANGE MIXTURE.

Bismarck's speech on Saturday last to the reichstag was full of stormy denunciation and trenchant sarcasm. His rebuke of the rashness of admitting Alsatians. "We did not fight the French in order to have ourselves inoculated by fourteen Frenchmen," was as brilliant an expression of bitter contempt as ever was uttered by Napoleon the Great whom Bismarck strongly resembles on the political side of his genius. The moral distance between Bismarck and Napoleon however is very great, for Bismarck is truthful and frank to a fault, never guilty of treachery or duplicity and his private morals are without reproach. This strange, imperious explosive tempestuous man has always been a tender and devoted husband in a court where conjugal fidelity obtains small respect. In his letters to his wife Bismarck writes in a gentle, devout spirit grows melancholy when he sees the towers of his old university and censures himself because he cannot forget that when a wild boy he wasted what seems to him now precious hours in excessive beer drinking and those barbarous student duels that often leave the principals with hideous scars upon their faces that never disappear.

The recently published correspondence of Motley reveals this extraordinary man Bismarck in a charming light. In 1832, when Motley was 18 years of age, he was a fellow student with Bismarck at Gottingen, and there began their friendship, which was never broken until Motley died in 1877. In their correspondence down to the last year of Motley's life, Bismarck writes him letters full of boyish fun wit and reminiscence full of the most ardent affection, always addressing him as "My Dear Jack." Countess Bismarck writes that after her husband met Motley again for the first time in 1855, twenty years after their college days he became twenty years younger. Motley writes that at this early day he never doubted that Bismarck would be prime minister some day "save that his stubborn love of truth" seemed to be an obstacle to his political success. In 1872 Motley writes of his visit to Bismarck's house in Pomerania, where he was received by Bismarck's whole family with exuberant joy and extravagant hospitality. Bismarck joined Motley in singing the American songs of liberty he had learned from him in his wild boyhood at Gottingen, and told his wife how he used to look up at Motley's window where with red slippers on his feet his long legs always were visible to those passing by. These traits in Bismarck stamp him as human while Napoleon the Great was inhuman. Can anybody conceive of Napoleon having a life long love for any human being save himself? Can anybody conceive of Napoleon impulsively jumping into the water and at desperate peril to his own life finally rescuing his groom from drowning? Gladstone was right when he said that one is glad to think of the Bismarck disclosed by his letter inviting Motley to come and see him.

Motley described Bismarck at that early day as a man of noble character great powers of mind strict integrity courage versatility, joined to a high sense of honor and a firm religious belief.

In 1863 Bismarck writes Motley that the so called orators of the Prussian chamber of deputies have an inexhaustible self complacency stupid and audacious, although generally educated in the regulation university culture but so ignorant of politics that they become childish when they stand together in corpore. They are stupid in the mass while individually intelligent. This is no bad description of our average congress or of the best of legislatures in our oldest and most intelligent and influential states. Motley describes Bismarck in 1872 as in private conversation actually without affectation egotism or vanity. He is utterly sceptical of great personality and tells Motley that he used, when younger, to think himself a clever fellow enough, but now he was convinced that nobody had any control over events, that nobody was really powerful or great and it made him laugh when he heard himself complimented as wise, foreseeing, and exercising great influence over the world.

Bismarck it should be remembered, was not responsible for the Franco-Prussian war after Sedan; he wished then to stop the war, and the capture of Paris was against his judgment and he told Motley that "nothing could be a greater blunder than for Germany to attack any foreign country." Of such a statesman it would be absurd to expect any trouble over Samoa. He is too wise and great a man to fight for the possession of a Polynesian bread fruit plantation with a great nation that has always been friendly from the day when Frederick the Great, sympathizing with America sent Washington his picture and made the Hessians who went to fight us pay head money.

President Harrison is criticised by the mugwump press because he has appointed his brother to an unimportant office. This criticism comes from George Wm Curtis, who solicited and obtained office under every republican administration for his brother and other near relatives for many years. Cleveland appointed his brother in law to an important office at Toledo Ohio and gave his wife's "Billy Billy" dude cousin, Ben Folsom, one of the finest foreign consulships in the civil service and yet Sister Curtis did not snuff or scold about it. President Lincoln appointed and commissioned his son, Robert, a captain in the army. When John Adams became president in 1797 his son, John Quincy Adams, was minister to Portugal having been appointed by Washington. President Adams asked Washington advice as to the propriety of promoting his own son by sending him to Berlin. Washington recommended the promotion very strongly on the ground of merit. President Adams made it, and it was never criticised, simply because everybody saw that it was made on the ground of merit, and not of relationship.

Recognizing the fact that drunkenness and other habits of dissipation hasten death and increase the tendency to suicide, the supreme lodge of the Knights of Honor now in session at Indianapolis has ordered subordinate lodges to get rid of dissipated members and to pay no benefits to the heirs or representatives of suicides. This is rather hard upon the latter, who are innocent victims of another's depravity but it is prudent for thrift to protect its earnings and philanthropy its purposes from the results of vice and dissipation when possible. This a beneficiary order can do to a great extent and it is strange that all of these do not insist upon sobriety as a prime requisite for membership. Public benevolence can take no account of the ways and means which lead to the poverty and suffering that it is called upon to relieve, but societies organized on a qualification basis of membership have an excellent opportunity to protect themselves from the leeches of vice that eat out the substance of industry and lead to premature exhaustion of the vital forces.

Marion county has a "poor farm" consisting of about thirty-five acres of valuable land with some conveniences for maintaining such paupers as are willing to live in the country and are able to content themselves with plain fare. Judging from the Statesman's report, comparatively few are willing to undergo these privations but insist upon living upon the county's dole while lounging about town. The feelings of these people are exceedingly tender, and their pride is of the Vanderbilt order hence they cannot bear to think of going to the poor house though they take the county's bounty willingly when allowed to choose their place of residence. This is a fraud upon taxpayers whether of Marion or Multnomah county. Pride is the one thing that a pauper has no use for. And the sort of pride that dictates the place of residence which its owner does not shrink from accepting is a public charity should be taught it on the lesson conveyed in the maxim of "Poor Richard," which declares that "it is hard for an empty bag to stand upright."

Mr A Noltner in response to an inquiry made by the New York World, as to his choice as member of the democratic national committee for chairman of said committee is reported as answering. "Gorman is my choice, first last and always." With this expression the following statement was made by Mr Noltner viz. "The position of the national convention on tariff reform is my position." It is plain that Mr Noltner does not know enough about the men and measures of his party to be aware of the fact that Mr Gorman is a protectionist, that he regarded the position of the national convention on tariff reform "so-called" as a mistake, that he was among the protesters against it, and that he was apprehensive that it would sink his party in defeat—which it actually did. The member of the democratic committee for West Virginia sees the matter more clearly. He pronounces for Gorman, but believes the committee ought not come so near to free trade in its expressions as Cleveland did.

Lord Ronald Gower has presented, through Mrs Frank Leslie, his colossal marble bust of "Our Savior," called "It Is Finished" now in the Royal Academy, London, to New York city. Having doubtless heard of the tremendous effort that was required to dispose fitly of Bartholdi's magnificent statue of "Liberty" after it was given to that city Lord Gower requested Mrs. Leslie to present his gift to some public gallery or art collection. The ultimate disposition of the bust has not yet been decided upon, but it is probable that it will be placed in the Metropolitan Museum of Art or in St Patrick's cathedral.

The fact that there are two sides to every question receives fresh illustration in the story of Mrs Ferry who has been telegraphed over two continents as the faithless wife of the Tacoma capitalist. The woman's side of the story now appears wherein she alleges her innocence of the charges preferred against her and declares her lord to be anything but a model husband, or even an ordinary gentleman. The public now has the sworn statement of both parties to this most disgraceful matrimonial altercation, and can exercise the royal privilege of believing whichever it pleases.

A dispatch published to-day furnishes a long interview from the New York Tribune with Mr Villard on Oregon & Transcontinental matters. The report bears every mark of an interview sought by Mr Villard rather than by the Tribune. Politicians and railroad operators often "get themselves interviewed," when they can prepare the questions and adjust the answers to suit. Critical acumen is never mistaken as to work of this kind.

A special from New York to the St Paul Pioneer Press says: "Mr Villard is identified with the Northern Pacific now almost as closely as when he was the company's president." Then since he is mourning over the construction of competitive lines, how would it do for him to stop the work the Northern is having Mr. Hunt perform?

DECORATION DAY AT MULTNOMAH FALLS.—The ladies' society of the Albina M. E. church have secured the steamer S. G. There will be patriotic music and a short address on the green sward at the foot of the falls and on the banks of Multnomah creek. Those standing at the top of the falls, 800 feet high, will have a chance to ascend the cliffs at the foot of the falls and there drink in the snow water fresh from the mountains. These falls are now in their glory. The steamer will leave Ash street wharf and touch at East Portland, Albina, St. Johns and Vancouver. Fare $1 50. Refreshments on board. Strangers and tourists are especially invited to join this excursion, and avail themselves of this magnificent trip. Tickets will be on sale at the wharf. THE DUST HAS SETTLED.—Three new sprinkling carts with new teams and new harness were out yesterday. The city has now eleven sprinklers, which should be able to keep the dust down under ordinary circumstances, but if the members of the council keep on raising as much dust as they have the past week or two nothing short of a general flood will save some of the citizens from suffocating. All seems to be peace and quiet being smothered. All seems to be peace and quiet now in and about the city offices, and nothing is likely to disturb the serenity of those who fill them till that crimson spot appears on the face of the moon again, and when it does Overseer Connor will do well to order out all the sprinklers at once, for the earth will be pawed up and the dust will fly worse than a Umatilla sandstorm.

MONROE FEELS APPREHENSIVE.—Sheriff Kelly started out yesterday morning to find Lawrence Monroe, the man who claims that ex-Convict Edward Clayton assaulted him. He thought Monroe would essay to leave the city on the Northern Pacific Puget sound train, so he went first to the depot and had just finished describing his man to Policeman Belcher when Monroe showed up. At the sheriff's suggestion Monroe went to the county jail and identified Clayton as his assailant. On the way to the jail he said: "I have never been in the penitentiary yet, but I may get there this time." He was locked up until a constable arrived from Sauvie's island with a warrant for his arrest charging him with robbery and attempt to murder. Clayton is the complainant.

MACHINERY ARRIVED.—The machinery for the cold storage warehouse and ice works near the Albina ferry has arrived and the building is progressing rapidly toward completion. The machinery comprises two Corliss engines of 509 horse power combined. The immense fly wheel weighs two tons. The company expect to be ready to start up by June 20. They have been notified that a stove firm in Chicago has shipped to them for storage a car load of stoves. The firm was evidently mistaken as to the character of the warehouse, for unless the stoves are hot they will not need to go into cold storage.

GONE TO BE REPAIRED.—The city dredge was taken down to Smith's yard yesterday and will be hauled out at once for repairs. While she lay at the Willamette Iron Works some eighty tons of bricks were taken out of her from around the boiler. With the removal of these and the rock which had been put in the other end to balance it, the dredger came up two feet and the king came out her and the hog chains hung slack. It is expected that she will be much improved by the repairs and changes to be made.

STREETS ARE NOT DUMPING GROUNDS.—The chief of police has issued instructions to the officers to see that the ordinance prohibiting people from dumping rubbish on the streets is strictly complied with. This order is particularly aimed at those who dispose of their grass cut from lawns by carting it out on the street. The streets are not by any means public dumping grounds, and if the law forbidding people making such use of them is not complied with some arrests are liable to follow.

SMALL CATCH OF SALMON.—Fish Commissioner E. P. Thompson has returned from a trip to Astoria and the Cascades. He reports small takes of salmon everywhere. At the Cascades but few wheels are running. At Astoria the gill nets are taking but few fish as the water is so clear that the fish see the nets and go under them. The pack up to date is behind that of last year, although there is much more gear in the water.

LARGE STRAWBERRIES.—Strawberries were plentiful yesterday and the price declined accordingly, and 5 to 7 cents per pound was all the gardeners could get. About the finest lot of berries seen, as far as size was concerned at least, was some 500 pounds raised by H. Gable on Kelly's butte. Fifteen large ones filled a basket, and very many of them were so large that they would make two bites. They were of the Sharpless variety.

W. P. CLARK STILL LIVETH.—Mr. W. P. Clark desires to inform his friends that he is not the Mr. L. W. Clark who committed suicide by shooting himself through the head Sunday forenoon. INQUEST ON THE BODY OF CLARKE.

The Coroner's Jury Find That He Committed Suicide While Temporarily Deranged.

Coroner De Lin yesterday morning summoned a jury and held an inquest on the remains of Lyman Wilson Clarke, the man who committed suicide by shooting himself through the head Sunday forenoon. As the widow objected to having the remains removed to the morgue, the inquest was held at the residence, No. 85 South Fourth street.

The first witness sworn was the widow, Mrs. Mary Clarke. She testified as follows: "The deceased was my husband. I was married to him less than two months ago. He was 31 years of age and a native of Illinois." Mrs. Clarke proceeded: "I had known him about ten years. Went to church Sunday morning and returned home about 12:25. Came upstairs and noticed the door locked, but thought nothing of it as I supposed he was taking a bath. I tried the door and called his name, but received no answer. Then I went into the front room and changed my clothes. Subsequently I went back and tried the door again and imagined I could hear him make a queer noise. I called his name again and again and getting no reply I broke in the door and found him lying in a pool of blood.

"I ran down stairs and told Mrs. Lystrup. Returning, I washed his face, and in so doing I saw a pistol lying beside him. Don't know whether he was breathing when I first saw him. I tried to see whether his heart was beating, but I was so excited I did not know what I was doing. I know nothing that would cause him to commit such a deed, only he was subject to blue spells.

"He would have one every two or three months. I think business worry caused them. * * * He said many a time that he thought he would die by his own hand. His father took his own life, and he thought he had inherited the mania. I never paid any attention to his talk, because I did not think he was serious."

The next witness called was Mrs. Meta Lystrup, the lady who lives down stairs in the same house. As she did not hear the shooting, her testimony had little material bearing on the proceedings.

These were the only two witnesses examined with the exception of Dr. A. C. Panton, who, having made an examination of the bullet wound, testified as to its nature. He stated that "the bullet traversed the brain, and the appearance and position of the wound indicate that it was self-inflicted."

THE VERDICT.

The jury rendered the following verdict: "We find his name to have been Lyman Wilson Clarke, a native of Illinois, 31 years of age, and married; that his death resulted from a gunshot wound inflicted by his own hand while laboring under temporary aberration of the mind. Said suicide occurred at 85 South Fourth street, May 19, 1889."

The funeral was held from the residence at 3:30 o'clock in the afternoon.

WOMEN CHRISTIAN WORKERS.

Regular Weekly Meeting of the W. C. T. U. Held Yesterday Afternoon.

At a regular meeting of the Portland Women's Christian Temperance Union, yesterday, the following were elected delegates and alternates to attend the State Women's Christian Temperance Union convention to be held at Salem, May 22, 23 and 24: Mrs. N. S. Keasey, Miss Jane E. Weeden, Miss N. S. Lyman, Mrs. E. Dalgleish, Mrs. M. J. Townsend, Mrs. I. B. Lewis.

Mrs. I. B. Lewis reported for the committee on the suppression of the rum traffic on the Congo that said petition was last Sunday circulated for signatures at Hall street M. E. church.

The committee on calling Mrs. Leroy Washington to lecture under the auspices of the Portland Women's Christian Temperance Union, reported that they had appointed for her to speak at the First Baptist church on Friday evening, May 24, at 8 o'clock.

The committee to express a sentiment for Miss Willard's golden birthday reported a beautiful poem by Mrs. N. S. Keasey, which was read and accepted enthusiastically as the sentiment of the union towards the world's greatest temperance worker.

Miss Weeden was appointed to see the proprietors of the Tabernacle and ask that one evening's rent, now due, be remitted.

Mrs. Cooper read a written report of her work to be forwarded to the state convention by the secretary, as she could not attend, which was accepted.

Five delegates and several state superintendents will start for Salem to-day.

The principal workers will return Friday to be present at Mrs. Washington's lecture. Adjourned.

BRIDGE TOLLS AGAIN.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN.

In your issue of Sunday appears a letter signed by Mr. J. G. Warner, which is a specimen of the arguments in favor of low bridge rates. From the county court tally Mr. Warner estimates that the income of the Morrison street bridge is $21½ per day. Of this amount he makes the street cars contribute:

1744 cars, 20 cents	$348.80
16,318 car passengers, 3 cents	489.54
Total	$838.34

Average per day from cars, $119.75, or considerably more than one-half the entire estimated income of the bridge. Has it occurred to Mr. Warner to inquire how this would affect the street car company? Let us see:

According to this statement the cars carried during the week a total of 16,318 passengers, at 5 cents—$815 90.

Amount estimated by Mr. Warner to be paid to bridge	$838 34
Total earnings (as above)	815 90
Paid to bridge in excess of total earnings	$ 22 44

Add to this the operating expenses, interest on investment and a reasonable amount for wear and tear and what a pleasant and profitable business the running of street cars becomes!

In Mr. Warner's millennium plan he has been more generous since he allows the cars but little less than three cents per passenger. If cars can be profitably operated for this fare is it not somewhat strange that in large cities, where the traffic is many times greater than in East Portland, competition has not forced it to this rate? And is it not still more remarkable that franchises should be daily granted which permit soulless corporations to charge the exorbitant and unreasonable sum of 5 cents a ride?

The writer calls to mind but two toll bridges over which street cars are operated—the one at Pittsburg, the other at Omaha. In each place the full bridge toll is collected from car passengers in addition to the regular 5-cent fare.

C. F. SWIGERT,
Secretary Willamette Bridge Railway Co.

The Oregon & Transcontinental Sensation Dying Out.

ANOTHER JUMP BY STEVE BRODIE

A Number of Western Appointments—Gambling Clubs in London To Be Suppressed—A Terrible Crime in the Pacific.

NEW YORK, May 20.—On the stock exchange, Oregon & Transcontinental opened 3 per cent. higher, but retired sharply to 38½, a decline of 6¼, while cash sales were 44 to 45, and seller four days 39.

THE SENSATION DYING OUT.

NEW YORK, May 20.—The sensation caused by the rise in Oregon & Transcontinental stock last week appears to be gradually dying out to-day, but both parties to the contest for control kept interest alive by manipulations for the purpose of liquidation. It is rumored that a compromise was arrived at by which the Union Pacific will continue to pay a 6 per cent. dividend on Oregon Railway & Navigation stock and retain the control. This would eliminate all bitterness from the election and leave nothing for the Villard party to fight for.

THE STOCK GOES DOWN.

In the afternoon the stock was decidedly heavy. The selling forced it down to 39, a decline of 6 per cent. from the opening. Villard was offered 5000 shares with proxies by Governor Ames, of Massachusetts, but he declined to buy. While Oregon & Transcontinental stock was being sold the brokers indentified with Villard bought Northern Pacific heavily, and caused an advance of 2½.

A DENIAL FROM DEACON WHITE.

NEW YORK, May 20.—Deacon White vigorously contradicts the story that he was swamped in Oregon & Transcontinental. Instead of being short on the stock, he says his firm has $1,350,000 stock held for customers and others. The rumor, he declares, is not only false, but malicious.

A RIVAL OF SAM PATCH.

Steve Brodie Makes a Successful Jump Over the Passaic Falls.

NEW YORK, May 20.—Steve Brodie, the bridge-jumper, jumped over the Passaic falls this morning and came out without damage. For the past three months Brodie has entertained the idea that it was necessary, in order to perfect his record as a jumper, to rival the late Sam Patch, by jumping from some of the places from which the latter jumped. About March 1 Brodie went to Rochester to jump from the Genessee falls, where Patch lost his life, but was dissuaded, as the water was only five feet deep. The scene of to-day's jump is one of the places where Patch jumped.

FOR THE TERRITORIES.

A Number of Nominations, but None for Oregon or Washington.

WASHINGTON, May 20.—The president made the following appointments to-day:

Receivers of public moneys: H. C. Pickles, of Delaware, at Folsom, New Mexico; Frank Lesnet, of New Mexico, at Roswell, New Mexico.

Registers of land offices: William P. Alexander, of Colorado, at Del Norte, Col.; John H. Mills, of New Mexico, at Roswell, New Mexico.

Indian agent: Jno. Fosher, of Wyoming, at the Shoshone agency, in Wyoming.

GAMBLING CLUBS IN LONDON.

The Police Announce Their Intention of Suppressing Them.

LONDON, May 20.—The hearing in the case of the persons arrested for gambling last week in the Field Club to-day resulted in the conviction of S. Eton, the proprietor, who was fined £500. The players were discharged. Counsel for Countess Dudley, whose son, Lord Dudley, was among those arrested, denied that she had any communication with the police concerning the character of the Field Club, and instigated the raid. The public prosecutor announced the intention of the authorities to suppress all gambling clubs, hundreds of which exist in London.

HORRIBLY BUTCHERED.

A Missionary, His Wife and Child Murdered and Robbed.

NEW YORK, May 20.—Advices from Rua Tan island, off the Honolulu coast, say that Rev. Hobbs, a Baptist minister, his wife and child were horribly butchered with knives by unknown persons while asleep in their home. The object was robbery. A Jamaican sailor named Burrell was arrested with some of the money on his person.

THE PRESBYTERIANS

The General Assembly in New York Receives a Report on the Negro Question.

NEW YORK, May 20.—In the general assembly of the Presbyterian church this morning the committee on Christian unity reported that negotiations were in progress for a conference with the Congregationalists.

A report of the work among the colored race in the South was submitted. It was shown that of the 1,800,000 children of school age only 800,000 attend school. It was stated that illiteracy among the blacks is increasing, and with it an increase in the illiterate vote, which is being unscrupulously used by politicians. The suggestion that negroes be sent to Africa is impracticable, as there are 8,000,000 of them in the United States, and as they are being born at the rate of 600 a day, it would be impossible to build ships enough.

The committee on evangelical work among immigrants emphasized the necessity of bringing this class under Christian influence. The committee recommended that a third secretary be appointed in the board of foreign missions who will devote his time to the immigrant population. Germans especially, the report held, should be looked after, and preaching to them must be in German. Recess.

At the afternoon session Rev. D. Cattell presented a report as chairman of the ministerial help committee. The report recommended that every minister who has reached the age of 70, who has preached for thirty years in the Presbyterian church, shall receive $300 a year, without his case being considered annually by the committee. The report was adopted and the assembly adjourned.

The committee on Christian unity reported that negotiations were pending for a conference between the committee and a committee of Congregationalists.

A report was received concerning the duty of the church toward the emigrant; also a report concerning the relief of poor and disabled ministers. There were on the roll last year 223 Presbyterian ministers to whom aid was extended, 341 clergymen's widows, and 31 families of orphans. This exhausted all the balance of the fund, and $9000 deficiency was caused, but the deficiency was made up by a special appeal. Receipts of the fund fell off $3000 during the year.

A CARELESS OFFICER.

The Normandy Blamed for the Wreck of the Charlotte Webb.

NEW YORK, May 20.—The surviving pilots of the boat Charlotte Webb declare the fault of the collision by which their boat was wrecked to be entirely due to the recklessness of the steamer Normandy's officer in plunging at a high rate of speed through the thick fog and paying no attention to the signals. Each [illegible] and fog horns on the pilot boat. Captain West and [illegible] Fitzgerald were the only ones drowned.

A DISHONEST CASHIER.

He Embezzles $1000 From the Western Union Telegraph Company.

BOSTON, May 20.—Wm. B. Perry, cashier of the Mutual District Messenger Company, is under arrest charged with embezzling $1000 from the Western Union Telegraph Company. He did this by raising the amount of monthly bills against the telegraph company and pocketing the difference.

AMONG THE CITY COURTS.

General Rufus Ingalls Refused Admittance to the Holladay Residence.

Albina Sued—Matrimonial Candidates—"Sandy" Olds's Plea—Jarvis Indicted—Before the Police Judge—The Blotter.

The petition of General Rufus Ingalls, executor of Mrs. Holladay's estate, for permission to enter the family residence and make an inventory of the effects of the dead woman, was denied by Judge Stearns yesterday. The court found that the evidence showed that all the property belonging to Mrs. Holladay had been already turned over to the executor by placing it in Colonel McCraken's warehouse, subject to the order of General Ingalls. This was testified to by Mrs. Carter and Mrs. Crawford, colored domestics of Mrs. Holladay, who were living at the house at the time of her death and since, and were familiar with all the property belonging to Mrs. Holladay. The right of entry under such circumstances, is based only on the necessity of discovering and taking possession of property belonging to the estate and then only when it is not resisted forcibly by other parties claiming any interest in the same and lawfully occupying the premises.

The court said as a matter of propriety and to avoid the appearance of suspicion and bad feeling the receivers might have permitted the executor to have entered the house and made an inventory of the property, but as they had seen fit to refuse to do so and had delivered the property the necessity for making the order had ceased. The refusal to admit the executor apparently arose from the personal ill will and animosity existing between one of the receivers and the executor. The court further held that ample authority was vested in the county court under a special statute to discover property of an estate to cite any person concealing or refusing to deliver the property, before the court and compel him to give any information regarding the same. Based upon such information the executor could bring an action at law to recover such property. For these reasons the court refused to make the order upon the showing.

A HEAVY POLICE GRIST.

Judge Tanner's docket in the police court yesterday afternoon, was unusually large, even for a Monday. The following cases were disposed of: William Wallace, E. Brundage, Bernard Riley, and William Lonstred, drunk; fined $10 each; H. Peter, drunk, fined $5; William Holland, Thos. Williams, Chris Loemer and Charles Thayer, drunk, got off with $2 fine each; J. Anderson, charged with refusing to move on when ordered to do so by Officer Woods, was discharged, it appearing that no offense had been committed.

Andrew Olson was found guilty on a charge of vagrancy and the court sentenced him to pay a $50 fine. As this, for him, is a financial impossibility, "Andy" will have to do time in the county jail.

John Parker was fined $20 for roaming the streets after midnight, and Henry Geerford and William Simpson were fined $10 each on a similar charge.

Fred Nisonger, Robbie Hodgkinson and Frank Waldron, three small boys, charged with disorderly conduct for playing a dirty trick on one of their companions, had their examination in the police court yesterday afternoon. The court took their cases under advisement and will render a decision this afternoon.

The names of John Pickrell and Alice Thera appeared on the police transcript charged with lewd and lascivious cohabitation. Pickrell occupied a seat in the prisoners' dock and at the close of the court asked leave to waive examination. He was held to appear before the grand jury under $500 bonds. Alice Thera was not in the police court and she will be arraigned this afternoon.

Annie Sanders, a cook in the Little Rock restaurant, had an examination on a charge of assault and battery on Annie Lafferty. The defendant admitted the assault, but claimed that it was provoked by the other woman. The court imposed the light fine of $5.

FRANK JARVIS INDICTED.

The grand jury yesterday indicted Frank Jarvis for incest. Not a true bill was returned in the case of Charles Grnell, charged with shooting William Hubbard in the hand.

LICENSED TO MARRY.

Marriage licenses were granted yesterday for Daniel Krunke and Annie Schulze, Henry J. Schwian and Lizzie A O'Brien.

OLDS PLEADS NOT GUILTY.

Sandy Olds, who was indicted for the murder of Emil Weber, pleaded not guilty in the criminal court yesterday.

AN AGED WOMAN'S INSANITY.

Annie C. Johnson, of Powell's valley, a native of Sweden, aged 70 years, was declared insane yesterday.

THE CITY OF ALBINA SUED.

M. H. Murphy yesterday sued the city of Albina to recover $42 60 for work done.

MOSCOW, IDAHO.

The County Seat and Principal Town of Latah County.

A Flourishing Little City Rapidly Assuming Metropolitan Airs—Enterprises Already Established and Under Headway.

MOSCOW, Idaho, May 18.

The city of Moscow is the terminus of a branch road of the O. R. & N. and is situated in the western part of Idaho, within three miles of the Washington line, at a distance of twenty-eight miles by rail from Colfax. Its location could not be more beautiful or commanding, especially the residence portion of the city, while the business houses occupy a level plateau. To the east lie the beautiful Cœur d'Alene mountains, whose thickly-timbered sides and snow-capped peaks give the surroundings a beauteous splendor, and the large scope of fine agricultural land stretching in all directions—a vast, rolling, undulating region—tells the tale of Moscow's wonderful growth—almost like magic—into one of the most promising little cities of the great Northwest. At the first sight of this wonderful little city one cannot fail to be favorably impressed with its appearance.

The dwelling houses are neat and occupying, as they do, such a prominent position on the elevated incline just back of the business streets, give the place a home-like appearance, while the school buildings, churches and court house show off magnificently. Many beautiful houses are to be seen on this elevated plateau—homes of men and women who have plenty of capital to enable them to enjoy the luxuries of city life, but who are apparently well satisfied with Moscow and their present surroundings, and have built up elegant homes in this faraway city of Western Idaho. They are, apparently, a happy and contented people, devoted to their home institutions and domestic affairs. There is a future before them of happy events and great accomplishments.

THE UNIVERSITY OF IDAHO, LOCATED AT MOSCOW, TO COST $150,000—PUBLIC SCHOOLS.

The people of Moscow have always taken an active interest in educational affairs, and have only lately finished a fine public school building at a cost of $16,000, which is an excellent advertisement for the town, and the center of attraction for strangers, but the cause of their great rejoicing at this writing is the direct result of the location of the University of Idaho at this place. If the present intentions of the board of regents are carried out, and there is no doubt but what they will be, the building, furniture and apparatus will cost in the aggregate $150,000. The regents of the university met at Boise City recently for the purpose of effecting a permanent organization for carrying on the good work already under successful headway, and the following were elected as permanent officers: President, Willis Sweet; secretary, H. B. Blake; treasurer, R. S. Browne. An executive committee consisting of the above named gentlemen and J. W. Jones was appointed. This committee was instructed to advertise for and procure a suitable location, and to invite plans and specifications for the necessary buildings at an early date. The location of this university at Moscow and the subsequent good results that are sure to follow, will at no very distant day make this the Eugene City of Idaho and the place to be desired above all others on account of its educational facilities. The people of Moscow have labored hard and constantly in order that this prize might be secured, and now that they have it the future of Moscow is assured beyond any doubt and her people made happy in consequence. The building of the university this year will put a large amount of money in circulation, will furnish labor to the unemployed and be the means of stimulating all lines of business and trade. Why? Because a large majority of the Eastern people who are looking for homes in the West will select a place where educational advantages exist. Moscow, having this institution and a first-class public school, will certainly attract the attention of hundreds of home-seekers. But this is not the only attraction that Moscow offers, important as it may be. It has been demonstrated for the past ten years that the soil of the adjacent country is fully as productive as that of any other portion of the Palouse country, and there are yet hundreds of thousands of acres to be taken up or purchased at a nominal price. The mountain sides are lined with as fine cedar, pine, tamarack and fir as can be produced in any country, and only awaits the arrival of men with capital and energy to cut it down and manufacture it into lumber for shipment to the Eastern markets. Evidences of the existence of gold and silver bearing quartz have been discovered within ten miles of the city. Various manufacturing enterprises will form a link in the great chain of enterprise and industry that is to be welded in the future events of Moscow.

As before mentioned, this city has a public school building recently constructed at a cost of $16,000. This school is graded, is in charge of five teachers, and the average daily attendance for the year has been 210. The building is centrally located, being only two blocks from the main business street. Its prepossessing appearance is a great credit to the city and a compliment to the men who had charge of its construction. The interior of the building is all that could be desired for convenience and comfort. The people of Moscow justly claim that their public school building is second only in the territory to the one at Boise City.

EVIDENCES OF PROSPERITY.

The growth of Moscow from the beginning, about twelve years ago, has been gradual until within the last year, during which time a large number of handsome business and dwelling houses have been erected, and various business enterprises established. The increase of population the last year is estimated to have been fully 30 per cent, and at the present time the increase is proportionately greater.

In the city of Moscow there are forty-nine dealers of all kinds. Two general merchandise firms carry each a stock of goods that will invoice $70,000. Four hotels do a thriving business, and are frequently crowded to overflowing with guests. One of them is first-class in every particular, and would be a credit to any city. A careful estimate shows that the gross amount of business transacted in this city last year was $1,250,000. Of last year's crop 15,000 tons of wheat were shipped from this station, but there remains a large amount in the granaries and warehouses for shipment. The stock industry is not extensively engaged in, but twenty-five cars, principally of fine blooded horses were shipped last year.

The hotel registers of town furnish the best basis upon which to calculate the number of arrivals in a place, and a careful estimate from this source indicates that during the past year between 8000 and 9000 people have arrived in Moscow. In fact nearly every train that arrives here brings from ten to thirty people. Of course it is not reasonable to suppose that a majority of these people remain here, but hundreds of them have located here and in this valley within the last twelve months. Home seekers in search of cheap farm lands or business openings find no place in Washington territory where such attractions are offered as they find here.

The Colfax Gazette last summer paid the following neat tribute to this flourishing little city:

Moscow is without doubt one of the best farmed cities of the north-west. Its population of 1500 souls is of as good and energetic people as ever lived; with the magnificent country surrounding, to back her with her vast timber interests, and the rich, undeveloped gold and silver in Moscow mountain and the Muscovite mica mine, the finest mica mine in the world, only a short distance east, must certainly develop into a city of considerable prominence. Situated as she is with the connecting link, the O. R. & N., between Moscow and Colfax we naturally feel a sisterly interest for this wonderful Idaho city.

There is nothing that speaks more forcibly of the enterprise and wide-awake pushing, energetic disposition of the people of Moscow and surrounding country than the fact that they succeeded in having congress divide Nez Perce county, and they themselves cut off into a new and separate county. Latah county is the northern half of the original Nez Perce county, and is only one year old. The population at the present time is over 12,000, while Moscow, the metropolis, boasts of 1500 people and has 80 per cent. of the trade of the county.

Moscow has a good charter, a council of active members, and a good city government in every respect. It is supplied with water by wells and cisterns. Plans are now on foot for bringing water from the mountains, some seven or eight miles distant, for fire and other city purposes. Water obtained from wells is very pure and is reached in various parts of town at a distance of from 30 to 100 feet below the surface.

The large frame building owned by the G. A. R. post, and used as a theater, has a seating capacity of 800, the stage is large and well equipped, and the scenery is all that one could desire. Traveling troups are always well pleased with their accommodations in this city. The drop curtain scene is a picture of Mission Ridge and Lookout Mountain, executed by a gentleman living near here, and is an elegant piece of work.

The courthouse building, just completed at a cost of $25,000, is a handsome structure, has neat and commodious offices, a large courtroom and occupies a most prominent position on an elevated level, just east of the main business portion of the city.

Church denominations are represented in Moscow by the Methodists, Baptists, Presbyterians, Adventists, Swedish Methodists, Lutherans, Catholics, German Baptists, United Brethren, Episcopalians and Christians, eight of which have church buildings, and the other organizations intend building this summer.

The First National Bank of Moscow occupies a handsome brick structure erected by the company at a cost of about $10,000. The business of this bank is so great that preparations are being made for the organization and establishment of a Second National at this place.

Last year a large number of buildings were erected, including six brick structures. This year the improvements will be of a more substantial character, and one hundred buildings will probably be erected. Five large brick blocks, in all 500 feet front, are contemplated, work on M. J. Shields & Co.'s three-story brick having already begun.

The streets of Moscow are being graded to a uniform level, which will be the means of making a decided improvement.

MANUFACTORIES.

Moscow now has two flouring mills of the roller process, planing mill, sash, door and blind factory, cigar factory, two large brick yards, which are supplied with the latest improved machinery, and machine shops. A foundry would pay here, but the surest investment would be the establishment of a flax mill. Flax is grown in abundance near here, and the great wonder is that such a mill has not already been established. A creamery is one of the things badly needed in Moscow. Here is a chance for a profitable investment of a little surplus capital, and a creamery man would do well by writing concerning such an enterprise.

Among the public enterprises contemplated and under headway are the University of Idaho, a branch of the Northern Pacific railroad, an agricultural fair association, electric lights, water works, street grading and a system of sewage.

RESOURCES.

Latah county produces as large an acreage of grain as any part of the Palouse country. The farming land surrounding Moscow is susceptible of wonderful yields, the average yield of wheat last year being thirty bushels to the acre. Flax is being extensively grown and the other staples do remarkably well. Improved farm lands in Latah county are worth on an average $20 an acre, unimproved from $6 to $10. Government lands are nearly all taken up except unsurveyed timber lands. Residence lots in Moscow can be bought at very reasonable figures. Business lots are worth from $400 to $5000, according to location. Excellent timber and plenty of it is obtained along the spurs of Cœur d'Alene mountains and five saw mills, located from eight to fourteen miles from Moscow, supply the city with lumber. This timber consists of cedar, pine, fir and tamarack, and is just as good as any country can boast of.

Horses and cattle are raised in all parts of the county, but not many are shipped. The increase has hardly been sufficient, on account of the rapid settlement of the county, to supply the home market. Some sheep and hogs are raised.

Frequent indications of the existence of gold-bearing quartz have been discovered along side of the mountains not over twelve miles from town, and placer mining operations have been carried on for many years with good returns. Moscow is the nearest point to the celebrated Mica and Ruby creek mines.

The fruit industry can be made a profitable one in this section, as trees grow rapidly and produce well. The principal fruits grown are apples, pears, cherries, plums and prunes and small berries. Snake river furnishes peaches and the semi-tropical fruits. A large nursery is being cultivated near town and the owners find it a paying industry.

Indications of coal have been discovered in the Potlatch region, twenty miles distant.

GENERAL NOTES.

The lowest average yield of grain in this county was twenty-two bushels per acre. Volunteer crops frequently average twenty-five bushels.

Lumber is delivered in Moscow at from $12 to $27 50 per thousand. Cord wood delivered at $3 50 a cord.

Three stage lines operate between here and Palouse City, Julietta and Lewiston. Good roads are always to be found.

There is quite an extensive bottling factory here, which manufactures soda, ginger ale, sarsparilla and all kinds of mineral water.

The secret societies are represented by the A. F. & A. M., A. O. U. W. and K. of P. Organization of lodges of the Royal Arch Masons and Odd Fellows will be effected within a short time. Various churches and other societies are in existence here.

Moscow has a good brass band, which furnishes choice music on all public occasions.

Two newspapers are published here—the Star of Idaho, by J. L. Brown, and the Mirror, by C. B. Reynolds.

The average number of letters handled in this postoffice per quarter is 40,000; number of money orders, 475.

The large elevator is nearing completion. Moscow now has two elevators and three warehouses for handling the grain crops of this part of the country.

Seven lawyers and five doctors find remunerative practice here.

Real estate transfers this spring are about five to one last year. Five real estate agents seem to be kept pretty busy all the time.

The facilities for making good brick in Moscow cannot be surpassed. Brick is furnished at a very reasonable price, which enables business men with only moderate means to have brick buildings.

Hunting and fishing afford good sport to the people of Moscow. The streams abound with trout, and along the mountain sides deer and elk are plentiful. The mountain resorts near here are all that one could desire.

If you are looking for a home or business location, a farm or stock ranch, timber or minerals, or of a place for investment of capital, you can find no better place than Moscow. Too much cannot be said of this favored little city and productive country. If you desire further information, write to I. C. Hattabaugh, W. J. McConnell or Dr. W. W. Watkins, who are not here to misrepresent things in the least. They are all prominent business men of Moscow, and will take pleasure in furnishing all desired information.

Your correspondent is under obligations to Dr. Watkins, one of the most active public spirited men of Moscow, for valuable assistance in gathering data and information for this brief write-up.

OREGON IN PITTSBURG

What is Thought of and Said About the Products of This Young State in the "Iron City."

Some time ago THE OREGONIAN mentioned the fact that a professor in the Pittsburg high school had written to the immigration board for samples of Oregon cereals to be used in the botanical department of the school. In response to the request the board sent a small history, and the following acknowledgment from the professor, with accompanying newspaper notices, will show the disposition made of the same:

CENTRAL HIGH SCHOOL, PITTSBURG, May [illegible].

Wallace R. Struble, Esq., Secretary Oregon Immigration Board: Dear Sir: The box of grain, etc., came to hand and I have just finished setting it up in a frame [illegible] square and [illegible] inches deep with glass front. [illegible] made a speech for Oregon before the school and afterwards distributed your circulars. I send to-day copies of all our Sunday papers with brief notices. We are much pleased with the exhibit. It is both useful and ornamental and we must accept my thanks and those of our school for your courtesy. The stoppers of some of the bottles dropped out and two or three were broken and the grain was thus badly mixed, but my classes carefully separated them again, so they are nearly right, though we could not, of course, be certain of all the names. Very truly yours,

W. S. JACKMAN,
Department of biology, Pittsburg high school.

NEWSPAPER COMMENT.

The Leader says: Professor W. S. Jackman, of the High school, wrote recently to the Oregon board of immigration, at Portland, for specimens of Western products of the soil, to be placed among the collection belonging to the natural history class. The board, which was established for the purpose of booming Oregon as a Mecca for west-bound settlers, responded last week by sending on a pile of farm products large enough to stock an entire museum, and all of them indicating the perfection of the agricultural industry in the far Northwest. The exhibit includes six varieties of wheat, one of which, the French spring, is sixty-eight inches in length; two varieties of barley and two varieties of rye. These varieties of grain being all in sheaf. Samples of grain in bottles included black, blue and white barley, hops, and four kinds of corn—white, red, yellow and sweet. The piece de resistance of the exhibit, however, consisted of two potatoes, one weighing one and three-fourths pounds, and the other weighing two pounds and measuring fourteen inches in length and four inches in thickness. The entire collection has been placed in a handsome, permanent case and serves to impress forcibly upon the minds of the High school naturalists the advantage of farmer's life in Oregon.

The Post says: Professor Jackman, of the High school, sent to the Oregon Immigration Company some time ago asking them for an exhibit of the produce of that part of the country for the use of the botany class. A few days ago he received a case containing specimens that show at least that Oregon is a great agricultural state. The exhibit consisted of six bunches of wheat in the head, one of them sixty-eight inches long; two bunches of rye, one of them Russian rye, which is said to yield 100 bushels to the acre; a bunch of barley, bottles containing wheat, hops and barley, corn on the ear and a couple of potatoes, one weighing two pounds and the other one and three-quarters pounds. The whole exhibit has been placed in a case and will be preserved.

The Dispatch says: Professor Jackman, of the High school, some time ago wrote to the Oregon Immigration Company at Portland for some samples of seeds and grain, for the delectation of his botany class. This week a handsome collection of the cereals of Oregon arrived. Among them are six different varieties of wheat in the head, two of rye, and specimens of black, blue and white barley. Then there are bottles containing hops, wheat and corn. In the collection are two mammoth potatoes, weighing two pounds and one and three-quarters pounds respectively. Professor Jackman has had the whole exhibit placed in a deep-seated frame, and the Pittsburg youths at High school can now familiarize themselves with the products of Oregon.

NEW USES FOR ELECTRICITY

Cars to Be Transported 1440 Miles a Day by Electricity.

NEW YORK, May 17.—A new scheme of transportation is to be introduced between New York and Boston, whereby, it is said, large packages and cars containing passengers can be whisked from one place to the other, 230 miles, in less than an hour. An experiment with the machine was held in Boston in the presence of many scientists, including A. E. Dolbear, of Tuft's College. He announced that he was thoroughly satisfied with the system. It consists of a magnetic car hanging from a single rail, where follows a current of electricity with one-horse power. It is said that one ton can be thus transported 1440 miles a day at a cost of 30 cents.—Dispatch to The Oregonian.

The application of electricity to machinery, as mentioned above, is not all the uses to which it can be applied. It cures most obstinate chronic diseases with wonderful and startling rapidity. Drs. Darrin, the electro-magnetic physicians, employ this remedy with wonderful success, as a few of the following testimonials will show from the many that they are constantly receiving:

Mrs. John Sax, a Prominent Lady of Portland, Gives Her Experience With Dr. Darrin at 235 Fifth Street.

Editor Oregonian: I have been a well woman all my life until last August, when I was taken down with chills and fever, which confined me to my bed nine weeks with rheumatism in my limbs and hands, also liver and kidney troubles. After lingering in this condition for five months, I was advised by my physician to try electricity. As Dr. Darrin had cured my mother of various ailments two years ago I put myself under his care. Now I am so far cured of all my troubles that only a few more treatment are needed. I can be seen at 253 Second street, Portland. MARY P. SAX.

Another Resident Heard From.

Mr. Editor: I have been confined more or less all winter with sciatic rheumatism in my right leg and hip, and I suffered excruciating pain. I was also troubled with creeping paralysis in my right hand and fingers, with loss of sensation. Having heard much of the famed reputation of the Drs. Darrin I consulted them and put myself under their electro-magnetic treatment. The pain has now left my leg and hip, and I consider myself most entirely cured. The feeling has also returned to my hand and fingers, and I feel in every way improved under their treatment. I advise every one afflicted to try them, as I have found them honest in their treatment. I can be seen and referred to at my residence. Everyone knows me, as I have been in Astoria since 1852. Yours truly, JOB ROSS.

Sore Eyes Restored.

Mr. Editor—Dear Sir: I have for over eight years been troubled with my eyes. Lately my right eye became very much swollen and painful, and I could not at times open it. I consulted Dr. Darrin and he said that my eye could be cured in about a week. He accomplished what he had promised in almost less time. I can be referred to, and I know of other cases that have been cured.

ALEDA RIPPA, Astoria, Or.

The Doctors' Place of Business.

Drs. Darrin can be consulted free at 235 Fifth street, corner of Main, Portland, and Occident hotel, Astoria, Oregon, and will, under no circumstances take a case that they are positive they cannot cure or benefit. Charges are reasonable, and the poor treated free from 10 to 11 A. M. Tuesdays and Saturdays. Office hours, from 10 to 5 o'clock daily; evenings, 7 to 8; Sundays, 10 to 12. They cure permanently all the diseases of the genito-urinary organs in either sex, and make a specialty of deafness and catarrh, and also treat successfully all diseases of the nose and throat; eye and ear, etc., as well as all acute and chronic diseases of whatever name or nature, if curable. No cases taken if not.

SALMON—An Eastern trade circular says: "There has been quite a demand for spot salmon the past few days, owing to the hot weather. The reports from the Columbia river grow more and more discouraging as the season advances, and unless there comes a decided change in the situation, there is already more Columbia river salmon sold from many packs than can be packed. It is, of course, too early to hear anything from Alaska. The fishing season does not commence there until about the 1st of June."

EGGS—The market rules even, with heavy receipts. We quote, 17@18c.

TEN MORE MARINERS SAFE.

They Landed in a Life Boat Near Cape Perpetua Sunday.

All Hands Accounted For—Edward Ward Relates His Experiences to a Reporter—James McGarry Safe

News reached this city yesterday in the shape of the following telegram, that ten more men of the Alaskan s crew had reached terra firma

CORVALLIS May 20

C J Smith, Manager O R. & N Co, Portland — The following telegram has just been received from our agent at Yaquina bay

A party came in from Alsea bay last night and reported that one of the boats from the ill fated steamer Alaskan came in to Cape Perpetua early yesterday morning with ten of the wrecked sailors. They reported having drifted near one of the life rafts from the Alaskan with two dead men on her The men are now at Alsea and report no news of the other boat, but gave news to Captain Winant, of the steamer Mischief, of their location and direction, when last seen, and the Mischief at once put to sea in search of them. The sailors saved are in good condition, and strong hopes are entertained that Captain Winant will pick up the missing boat, which is supposed to contain eighteen men. WM. M HOAG

THE OREGONIAN's correspondent at Newport sends the following which corroborates the above

NEWPORT, VIA YAQUINA May 20 —Reliable reports received to-day says that a boat containing eight or ten men from the wrecked steamer Alaskan, landed south of the first cape Perpetua and they were thoroughly exhausted and are recruiting strength before traveling

When the Alaskan left Astoria she had forty-seven persons on board including the three stowaways. All of them have been accounted for but just who are alive and who died from exposure and drowning is not known nor will it be until the names of the ten who landed at Cape Perpetua and at Empire City are known All who had friends on the Alaskan whose names have not appeared in these colums live in the hope that they may be in the boat that is reported as having landed last Sunday

The boat that landed near Cape Perpetua is undoubtedly life boat No. 1 No 2 was stove in while being launched No 4 was picked up by the tug Vigilant and No 3 landed at the mouth of the Siuslaw river

ED. WARD S EXPERIENCE

Ed. Ward pantryman of the ill fated steamer, arrived in this city yesterday morning from Eugene City looking none the worse for his thrilling experience, although his clothing showed signs of pretty rough treatment He told a reporter who met him in Port Captain Troup s office this story of the experience of his party after leaving the sinking steamer

"The report published in THE SUNDAY OREGONIAN of our landing at the mouth of the Siuslaw river covered our experience pretty thoroughly, although the party to whom I gave our names in Eugene got them somewhat mixed Their names as given to me by my companions in the boat are Ed Burns, coal passer E. A Carlton, mess man E. Wencal, chief cook J Murray, coal passer James McKen cy second cook M. Keeler, fireman M. McLain, oiler Ed Sharples coal passer Harry Johnson, seaman and Jack Ross, coal passer

"Jack Ross deserves the credit of our deliverance from a watery grave. If it had not been for his good judgment and coolness we would never have reached shore as we would have been swamped and all hands drowned.

'We were given orders to cut loose from the Alaskan about 11 30 o clock the night the steamer sunk, which was Sunday, May 12. After rowing a short time we discovered another life boat which we supposed was the one that left the steamer when we did, or shortly after The occupants of each boat were looking out for themselves and were after a time out of each other's sight. Out of curiosity we rested on our oars to see what would become of the steamer It was moonlight and we could see some little distance About an hour after leaving the sinking ship we saw those who were still on board shooting off rockets and burning signals of distress

As the sea that was running continued to get heavier, we again took up our oars and pulled in the direction we thought we would find land. At daylight Monday morning we sighted land which I tell you was a joyous sight. The land was a long ways off, and some wanted to wait with the expectation of being picked up by some passing vessel, but the majority favored making for the land and we did so We pulled until about noon, when a terrific gale sprang up and we were compelled to put to sea, as no boat could have lived in the breakers near shore. All Monday afternoon the storm kept getting worse, and at night it was blowing a perfect hurricane. All this time the rain and hail that fell was something terrible We had hard work all Monday night keeping the boat from being swamped.

"The weather moderated somewhat Tuesday morning and we again made for land, sighting it again about noon We laid to all that night and made a landing Wednesday morning in the rocks, as has already been related No man was drowned in making a landing, as was first reported On the contrary, we escaped without a scratch We were entirely destitute and suffered greatly from want of food and drink and from exposure

"My fellow survivors are now all at Florence and they cannot reach Eugene before Wednesday morning The roads are so bad as to prevent rapid travel, and the men are all very weak I walked twenty-eight miles from there and got to a farmer's house The farmer D O Brien gave me a horse and road with me to Eugene Our boat did not have McCarry hence he and his fellow survivors are another lot altogether He was not in the other lifeboat so that I think both of the boats as well as McGarry s raft are all safe now God only knows what a fearful time we had and he too only can appreciate our thankfulness upon being landed on shore again."

It will be seen by the above that the sinking of the steamer did not cost so many lives as was at first thought.

SEARCHING FOR THE BODIES.

The Remains of Moses Danziger and Harry Goehring, Who Were Drowned Sunday, Not Yet Recovered

Search for the bodies of Moses Danziger and Harry Goehring who were drowned near the east approach of the Jefferson street ferry Sunday afternoon was resumed yesterday morning and continued through the day, but up to a late hour last night neither of the bodies had been recovered.

Hugh Brady and several assistants dragged the river carefully at the place where the sailboat capsized but neither of the bodies was brought up by the grappling hooks Several charges of dynamite and blasting powder were also exploded and still no success rewarded their efforts It is supposed that the bodies are lodged agains some obstruction at the bottom of the river and still further search will be made

Young Danziger was a son of Henry Danziger bailiff of the United States court and the sad drowning is greatly mourned by his parents He was a very bright and intelligent boy and a general favorite wi h his companions, who held him in the highest esteem

Harry Goehring, the other young man has no relatives in the city His parents are living somewhere in Nebraska. He was also employed in the book binding firm of Meston & Dygert and possessed the full confidence of his employers as an honest and industrious young man. His former employer at Omaha Neb yesterday telegraphed the coroner to hold the remains if found, until further instructions as he will make an effort to communicate with the young man s parents.

The young men engaged their boat at the Pioneer boathouse at the foot of Madison street, and not at the Columbia at the foot of Yamhill as was stated

EFFIE ELLSLER IN "EGYPT."

Delightful Personation of the Heroine in Laura Don's Clever Play by This Charming Actress

In these days of horse-play farces and sketchy frameworks on which apologies for plays are so frequently hinged it is as refreshing to the lover of true dramatic art as the gentle rain to the semi parched earth to witness a play possessing true literary as well as dramatic merit. Such a play was Egypt presented to a large and well pleased audience at the New Park last evening by that most delightful of actresses Effie Ellsler and the thought no doubt was suggested to those of the audience who knew its author the late Miss Laura Don an actress herself of high repute that could she have seen the charming firstling of her creative fancy so beautifully delineated as it was by Miss Ellsler she would have been more than content

The role is a wide departure from those in which Miss Ellsler has gained her fame She has been identified especially with emotional and passionate characters, but in 'Egypt she reveals a delicate humor an archness and ingenue capacity that are delightfully refreshing There is a winning charm about her smile her eyes are the windows through which the romantic fancies of her girlish heart peep forth and her voice has all the expression and truth of intelligent intonation. Nothing could be more natural nor more taking in its simplicity than her little scene in the woods in the second act when believing herself alone she goes through an imaginary scene at her first ball with an imaginary lover It is one of the neatest bits of comedy work in the whole play As the Princess Yeddo the transformation from the gentle girl of the country to the dark skinned bizarre artist is most complete, and she carries the scene with all the finesse of the thorough art at Her work was splendidly done especially so the climax when with breaking heart at news of her father's death she still preserves her incognita by a peal of laughter She received a merited curtain call at the close of the act Taken as a whole there is a charm about Egypt' as portrayed by Miss Ellsler that it would surely lose if done by one of less versatility or whose personality was less winning

Her company, too is a good one Mr Orrin Johnson makes a very natural and easy Angus Somerdyke. His scenes with Egypt were cleverly and intelligently acted. He would improve his work, however, if in his scene with Katrina, in the fourth act, he would not speak so rapidly as to become unintelligible.

Mr Frank Weston, as Colonel Blueberry Bellows, was exceedingly good. He gave the required amount of self assertion, though of a good humored kind, to make the character highly amusing.

Miss Judith Bevolde as Katrina, Miss Nellie Buckley as Toto, Mr Frank Burbeck as Drexel Grewges and the remainder of the cast were acceptable.

"Egypt" for the last time to-night

NOW FOR A CLEARING HOUSE

Portland Will Probably Have One in Operation in a Few Weeks

The Bank Exchanges Now Average in the Aggregate About $500,000 a Day—Or $3,000,000 a Week—The System Explained.

Portland will probably have a clearing house in full operation in a few weeks. The committee appointed at the meeting of bankers Saturday to take the preliminary steps toward the organization of one will meet in a few days. They are now considering the constitution and by laws of the clearing house associations of other cities

A clearing house has long been needed in Portland to facilitate the exchanges between banks. There are eleven banks in the city and the exchanges average, in the aggregate, $500 000 a day, or about $3,000,000 a week. This is according to the estimate of the cashier of a national bank. The establishment of a clearing house here would put an end to a great deal of work by messengers hurrying through the streets with bags of gold on their shoulders and running the risk of being assaulted and robbed by some daring highwayman

Clearing houses are nothing more or less than places where exchanges or clearings are made. The system was first established in London about seventy or eighty years ago and was introduced into this country by the banks of New York city in 1853. They have since been established in the leading cities in the country Tacoma was the last town to organize one In New York there is a clearing house, but in many cities a prominent bank is used as the clearing house settling the balances by checks upon it

Each bank in its daily dealings receives large amounts of bills of lading, and checks on other banks so that at the close of the day s business every bank has in the drawers various sums due to it by other banks. It is in like manner itself the debtor of other banks which have during the day received its bills and checks drawn upon it. In towns where there is no clearing house it is necessary for each bank every morning to make up its account with every other bank and to send the messenger to present the bills and checks so received to the debtor banks for payment. All this would be obviated by the clearing house system through which the settlements are so simultaneously and almost instantly effected that the transactions adjusted through it in New York have amounted in one day to the enormous sum of $206 084,920 51, in adjusting which the exchanges were settled in the space of an hour

The clearing room in New York is provided with a continuous line of desks in the form of an oval one for each bank each desk bearing the name and number of the bank by which it is occupied the books being numbered according to the date of their organization. Each bank is represented every morning by two clerks—one a messenger who brings with him the checks drafts, etc. that his bank has received the day previous upon the other banks, which are called the exchanges and are assorted for each bank and placed in envelopes. On the outside of each envelope is a slip on which is listed the amounts of the various items which it contains These envelopes are arranged in the same order as the desks for the several banks

The hour for making the exchanges or general delivery is 10 A M At a signal from the bell each messenger moves forward to the desk next his own and delivers the envelopes containing the checks etc, for the bank represented by that desk to a clerk on the inside together with a printed list of the banks in the same order with the amount opposite each bank The clerk receiving it signs and returns it to the messenger who immediately passes to the next desk delivering the exchange for the bank represented by that desk and so on until he has made a circuit of the room and returned to his starting point having delivered to each bank the exchanges he had for it and consequently delivered his entire exchanges for all the banks Every other messenger does the like the whole moving on at the same time

This operation occupies exactly ten minutes. The entire business of the morning is usually accomplished in one hour The debit banks are required to pay to the manager in legal tender notes or coin previous to 1 1 M the same day and the credit banks receive immediately after that hour the amounts due to them thus by one process settling exactly the entire transactions of all the banks of the day previous.

PILOT BOAT PROVIDED FOR

The Expense To Be Divided Between the O R & N Co. and the Board of Trade

A special meeting of the Board of Trade was held at their chambers last evening President Donald Macleay in the chair

The president stated that the meeting had been called to receive the report of the committee appointed to wait on Mr C J Smith general manager of the O R. & N Co and make arrangements in regard to maintaining the pilot schooner on the bar of the Columbia

Mr E D McKee chairman of the committee submitted a verbal report to the effect that the committee had waited upon General Manager Smith who had agreed that the O R & N Co would keep up the pilot boat if the Board of Trade would give $150 per month The committee had agreed to this proposition subject to the approval of the board

Mr T F Osborn said there was no need to take a vote on the matter The board had guaranteed to maintain the schooner and would have had to pay it all if the company had not come in "Now the company agree to maintain the schooner if the board pays $150 per month and we must pay it

Captain Allen Noyes of the committee said Manager Smith would keep four pilots on the schooner and two on the company s steamers and carry out the guaranty of the board for two years beginning May 21 and he thought this was satisfactory and the board was getting off easy

Mr Osborn moved that the board pay the $150 per month for two years which motion carried.

President Macleay inquired how the money should be raised. If a committee was appointed to solicit subscriptions it should be a large one

Secretary Arnold said there were about 230 members in the board and if each would pay a small subscription monthly that money would be provided for

On motion it was ordered that the secretary send circulars to all the members of the board asking them to make a monthly subscription.

IF VILLARD OBTAINS CONTROL.

He Will Be Able to Block the Building of New Lines by the O R & N Co

John M Thurston of Omaha general solicitor of the Union Pacific Railroad Company is staying at the Esmond He was the temporary chairman of the republican national convention which met at Chicago last year and nominated Harrison It is stated that he is here to look out for the Union Pacific s interests in the forthcoming fight for the control of the O R & N Co but talking to a reporter yesterday he said that he came here on general legal business in the interest of the Union Pacific

'Will you take part in the hearing of the injunction restraining Henry Villard from using the new preferred stock" was asked

I think not The Union Pacific, while it is interested in the outcome of the fight, being the lessee of the O R & N Co is not directly interested in the fight for control

' If Villard obtains control of the O R & N Co what effect will it have on the plans for branches and extensions?

'The lease of the O R & N lines to the Union Pacific provides that neither can build branches without the consent of the directors of both companies If Villard gets the upper hand in the O R & N Co he will be able to withhold the company s consent to the building of new lines

HORSES AND HORSEOWNERS.

Great Interest Taken in the Forthcoming Meeting at City View Park.

Portland Men Talk of Organizing a Derby Association—Roadsters That Make Good Time on the Roads.

The Portland Speed Association held a meeting last night and transacted a good deal of routine business Committees were appointed to sell tickets for the June meeting

A letter was received from Eugene stating that two local horses had been matched for a three eighths of a mile dash for $500 a side and asking that the race be run at City View Park during the June meeting Secretary Gunst was directed to correspond with the Eugenites

A telegram was read from Cyrus Mulkey, a Sacramento horseman inquiring about the forthcoming races. He stated that a number of horses on the Sacramento track would probably be brought here

THE SPRING RECORD NO BAR.

The Portland Speed association has joined the National Trotting association and hereafter all races under its auspices will be governed by the rules of the latter organization The Portland association wrote recently to the national association asking whether the record made by a horse at the spring meeting is a bar against the entry of that horse in the same class in the fall meeting For example If a horse entered in the 2 40 class in the spring makes the circuit in 2 27 they want to know whether that horse can be entered in the 2 40 class in the fall The national association has answered that the horse can be entered in the same class in the fall.

A great deal of interest is being manifested in the forthcoming spring meeting of the Portland Speed Association. A large number of entries have been made The track at City View park is being put in superb trim for the big event It has been fixed up in many ways and the obscuring features have been removed so that now one can follow the horses all the way around the track The railroad companies will put special rates into effect and the Northern Pacific and the O R & N companies have agreed to return free of charge horses which the secretary has certified have been brought here and entered in the races.

LET S HAVE A DERBY ASSOCIATION

Several men who take a great interest in the turf have been considering the advisability of organizing a derby association for the purpose of making Portland a turf center They have come to the conclusion that it would prove a drawing card and it is not unlikely that a meeting will be held to take the preliminary steps in a few days They think they can establish a progressive derby starting with a prize of $2500 or $3000 The plan is like this. The association is to have say, fifty members each of whom shall contribute $20 which makes $1000 to begin with An entrance fee of 50 per cent added to a percentage of the pool box receipts and the receipts at the gate would make up the remainder The plan is to offer the purse for a two mile dash and repeat not less than five horses to enter Speaking of this scheme a well known horseman said yesterday

' I have no doubt that the association if organized would prove successful The enterprise is a worthy one, and if inaugurated all the horsemen in the Northwest, and many from other points on the coast, would jot Portland down on their list of good towns for horse racing There are nearly 10,000 people in Portland who take a life interest in turf affairs and I see no reason why we should not be able to organize a derby association It would not interfere in the least with the Portland Speed Association If Portland would offer a derby it would bring all the best horses in the Northwest here, and there would be some tall record smashing, I think. If you want to get an idea of the crowd a derby race will bring out, I will refer you to the recent meeting at Louisville Melbourne, Australia, offers a derby of $20,000 every year and even such a small place as Fresno Cal gave a $20,000 purse last year By all means let Portland come to the front.

ROADSTERS OWNED IN PORTLAND

Sprightly pole teams that can make it in 2 50 are owned by John Green J Put Smith, and George Beck George P Frank s team trots in about three minutes Put Smith drives Professor and Kelly

Mayor Van B De Lashmutt is conspicuous on the road Last year he drove Fowler and Dudley No one knows what horses he will have in his team this year but the horsemen think they will find out when he returns from Washington

Louis Clark s horse is Peanuts formerly owned by T J Colbert Peanuts can do better than three minutes

Samuel Lotan owns Chance, a dapple gray horse having a record of 2 50

Councilman C W Forbes is a great man on the road He drives Dandy which has a record of 2 50

There are various ways of washing dishes—possibly the above is the worst If you want your dishes, glassware, silver, &c , perfectly clean and bright, wash them with Pearline. Being a powder it is especially convenient for this work—besides it keeps the dish-rag clean, pure, sweet. Put Pearline in sinks and basins, turn on hot water ; it will cleanse the waste pipes. Many women use Pearline for these purposes only; they are only half wise For the laundry, kitchen and house-cleaning, in fact wherever soap is used, try Pearline—it's better, quicker, and saves labor—it has no equal, no rival It is as harmless as the finest imported castile soap, Beware of peddled imitations. Pearline is never peddled, but all grocers sell it 147 Manufactured only by JAMES PYLE, New York
